Race Wires Termed Key To Big-Time Corruption

Officials of Cities Ask Federal Law to Aid In Local Struggles Against Gambling

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

Continental Press Service with its nearly 17,000-mile racing wire system yesterday was called the key to big time illegal bookmaking in the United States.

Officials from Los Angeles, New Orleans and Miami and from Florida and Texas agreed to that in testifying before a Senate Commerce subcommittee in favor of a bill to ban the use of wires, phones and radio for transmitting gambling information.

They contended the gambling operations corrupt public officials and break out in gang murders. They said only Federal help could right the situation.

Los Angeles' Mayor Fletcher Bowron quoted a California Crime Commission report that a Federal ban on wire services would reduce bookmaking from a "major national racket" to a "petty nuisance."

Los Angeles' Chief of Police, retired Marine Maj. Gen. William A. Worton, said the service is "a principal to the crime of bookmaking" and that to cut it off would seriously handicap bookies. He said that "wherever (such) services operate, gangsters will fight over its control."

In the coast city, Worton added, Continental also provides bail bond and attorneys "and it has been reported in some cases to provide protection" for those arrested. Then he added:

"They are the people who are corrupting the police departments in this country. . . . They are the ones I want to put out of business."

Los Angeles' Capt. Lynn White, chief of the police intelligence service, said that "a desire to control the service has led to much of the gangster warfare." White told the Senators that the real race betting bosses in Los Angeles were Al Green and Jack Dragna, whom he described as associates of Frank Costello and other known figures in the gambling world.

Slot Machine Ban Bill Legal, McGrath Holds

Without directly referring to charges by House Interstate Commerce Committee Chairman Crosser (D., Ohio) that the anti-slot machine bill is unconstitutional, Attorney General McGrath has sent the Congressman a five-page letter to demonstrate its legality.

McGrath noted that the Senate passed the bill seven days after committee approval which, in turn, came only eight days after introduction of the measure. Crosser so far has yet to order hearings on a similar House bill introduced over three months ago.

Senate Votes Daylight Time; House Delays

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Senate approval was voted yesterday for Washington daylight saving time this and every summer.

But some House ground rules are making it uncertain whether Washington will get its daylight saving time a week from Sunday when other cities do—or some weeks later as has happened before.

In the Senate, Majority Leader Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.) called up the daylight saving bill of Senator Edward L. Leahy (D. R. I.).

Passed by Voice Vote

It was passed by a voice vote by a handful of members on the floor after Senator A. Willis Robertson (D., Va.) said that while he feels daylight saving would have an adverse affect on farmers of Maryland and Virginia, he would not object to the Senate's voting.

Senators Herbert R. O'Conor (D., Md.) and Spessard L. Holland (D., Fla.) joined in urging passage of the bill as a measure of home rule to a community that favors the plan. The District Commissioners, authorized by the bill to order daylight saving into effect, found 3-to-1 community support for it in a recent poll.

Lucas, O'Conor and Holland all joined in praising Robertson for letting the bill come to a vote. Senator Forrest C. Donnell (R., Mo.) reported no objections from the Republican side. As a final note, Senator Robertson said the record should show there were 6 votes for the bill, and 1 against, his own.

Consideration Indefinite

In the House District Chairman John L. McMillan (D., S. C.) told reporters there is to be no District Day in the House Monday—and that the best he can hope for is a slack time some day during the week to call up the daylight saving bill.

He predicted House approval of daylight saving—but not of the Senate bill. He said he thinks the House will refuse the Senate version giving the Commissioners permanent authority to establish daylight saving time each summer, and adopt instead the this-year-only bill recommended by a 10-9 vote of the House District Committee.

District Day is out of the question for Monday, McMillan said, because the House gave unanimous consent for the general appropriation bill to have right-of-way over all other House business except conference reports.

This right-of-way was granted by the House upon the request of Appropriations Chairman Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.). An exception is being made to let Representative John E. Rankin (D., Miss.) call up a Veterans Hospital bill Monday.

Americans Die in Japan

MacArthur Aides Among 35 Believed Killed in Air Crash

Tokyo, Saturday, April 22 (U.P.).—A United States Air Force, C-54 plane carrying 35 persons crashed into a mountainside and burned 60 miles south of Tokyo Friday night and all aboard were believed to have been killed.

An official here said the passengers were believed to have included several members of an Allied Headquarters trade mission returning to Tokyo from Manila after negotiating Japanese-Philippines trade agreement.

Officials said the plane carried 27 military and civilian passengers and eight crew members. All were believed to be Americans.

Japanese police said the plane's wreckage was found on Hirugatake Mountain in the Tanazawa range.

The SCAP mission included Frank Douglas MacArthur's foreign trade division; J. G. Torrens, trade area coordinator; Major R. C. O'Hara, B. W. Adams and Miss T. M. Tonole. All have been in the foreign trade division.

A United States headquarters official said there was a possibility one member of the party did not board the plane when it left Clark Field, Manila, yesterday. The Philippine foreign office spokesman said that O'Hara had decided not to return to Tokyo and had gone to Davao, on the Island of Mindanao, instead.

An Air Force spokesman said the plane was enroute from the Philippines to Tokyo by way of Okinawa. In its last report at 11:08 p. m., the plane radioed it was over the island of O Shima, Pickelle, chief of Gen.

Gala Banquet Closes DAR Convention

More than 1200 Daughters of the American Revolution crowded the Mayflower Hotel last night for a gala banquet that closed their fifty-ninth annual Continental Congress.

Highlight of the five-day Congress was the triennial election which put Mrs. James B. Patton of Columbus, Ohio, at the head of the 167,000 member organization.

Mrs. Roscoe C. O'Byrne, retiring president general, began a pledging session for the building fund by dropping her $50 greenback corsage in a silver bowl at last night's banquet.

Pup on Way Here From California As Gift to Truman

San Pedro, Calif., April 21 (U.P.).—A cocker spaniel puppy was en route to the White House today as a pet for President Truman.

Dr. Richard T. Street sent the dog as a result of a recent meeting with the President in Kansas City. Street formerly was an instructor at the Kansas City University School of Dentistry, and Mr. Truman was graduated from the University's Law School.

The President asked Street to send him a cocker pup if the dentist's Taffy of Nevada had a litter. One of Taffy's offspring was sent to Washington.

Truman Opens Drive to Keep Rent Controls

President Truman launched an intense campaign yesterday for one more year of Federal rent controls to prevent "a wave of exorbitant rent increases."

The present rent law expires June 30 and there is strong sentiment in Congress to let it die.

Mr. Truman sent a special message to the House and Senate urging Federal control be continued until June 30, 1951. He said the housing shortage still is acute and that the end of controls would mean "serious hardship for millions."

Democratic National Chairman William M. Boyle, jr., followed through with a broadside to party workers for a grass roots drive to influence Congress' vote on the question.

One-half of Boyle's weekly news letter to party workers across the country was devoted to a sheaf of arguments for a Federal rent-control law which will provide for "orderly decontrol at the right time."

The Senate Banking Committee begins hearings next Monday on whether to continue the rent law—

Editors Told Fear of 'Smears' Keeps Many From U. S. Jobs

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Raymond (Pete) Brandt, who has been reporting the Washington scene for 25 years, told the Nation's editors yesterday that good men are staying out of the Government because they fear they won't get "fair play" from the newspapers.

Brandt, chief of the Washington bureau of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, was one of four correspondents who talked about Washington coverage at the annual meeting of the American Society of Newspaper Editors in the Statler. His theme was that reporters, in uncovering wrongs in government, ought to be careful not to "smear or make ludicrous the men and women in government who are doing a good job."

Walter Trohan, chief of the Washington bureau of the Chicago Tribune, took Washington correspondents for a ride, and said they ought to "devote more time to the clay feet of officials instead of to their cloud-swathed heads."

Trohan, commenting on loyalty-board investigations, said that if young men are discouraged from coming into the Government service because they might be asked embarrassing questions, it is better that they stay out of the Government.

Correspondent Brandt said he thought that government could be improved if newspapermen added more fair play and informed judgment to their vigilant reporting on governmental activities. The decline in Government service, he said, cannot be blamed on corruption or official laxity. Part of the blame, he acknowledged, could be laid to low salaries and high living costs.

"But from what active and prospective Government officials say," he continued, "I gather that many good men are afraid of what newspapers wittingly or unwittingly will do to their reputations. Many believe they will not get fair play and sound judgment in the handling of news, editorials, cartoons and features.

"They especially fear a few newspaper columnists and radio commentators."

He told of the terms of derision used in the case of Senators and Representatives, and of the attempted humor about "striped pants diplomacy" or "cookie-pushing tea-hounds." British and Canadian newspapers, he pointed out, rarely deride their parliaments as such. The result is, he said, that in these countries, and in the Netherlands and the Scandinavian countries, one finds the best civil servants in the world.

"If we disagree with the Administration's foreign policy," Brandt said, "that can be attacked by the merits of our arguments and not by humorous mention of Acheson's accent or his impeccable clothes.

"If we don't like the antics of a few Senators and Representatives, we can single them out as direct

Old Institution, 5c Phone Call, Threatened by Pay Increases

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

An old American institution, the nickel phone call, may soon become as rare as the nickel beer, if the CIO Communications Workers of America win their current wage demands from the Bell Telephone System.

The New Jersey Bell subsidiary yesterday asked for a rate increase—including the boost of local coin box calls from 5 to 10 cents—a few hours after the company was ordered to pay a $2.50 weekly wage hike to 12,000 CWA operators by an arbitration board.

Various Bell companies have warned, during the past several months of negotiations with the CWA affiliates, that any increase in benefits to the union employes would have to be met by increased telephone rates.

Some of the subsidiaries, including the New York unit, have already petitioned their state public utility commissions, for the 10-cent coinbox call—which, by the way, is already in operation in Rochester, N. Y., where the phone system is run by the independent Rochester Telephone Co.

In Washington, the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co., which is in the Bell system, has stated a number of times it would have to seek a rate rise if the company agrees to all or part of the 15-cent-an-hour benefit boost sought by 5500 CWA workers here.

A company spokesman said yesterday that C. & P. is not thinking of any hike in the local calls from public booths "at this time." The spokesman pointed out that during the local rate hearings last December, C. & P.'s commercial manager, John Howard, testified that the public utility did not then contemplate a change in the local nickel coin-box calls.

Howard stated the cost to the company in converting the coin boxes from a nickel to a dime basis would be substantial, and that any rise in local phone call costs would result in a drop in the number of calls made.

Repeats Orders to Shoot

Russia Rejects Note on Plane; McCormack Suggests Break

Moscow, April 21 (AP).—Russia brusquely rejected every demand of the United States today over its missing Baltic plane and repeated orders to airmen to shoot down any resisting aircraft caught over Soviet territory.

The Moscow government in a note declared it was "clearly absurd" that the United States demanded compensation for a four-engined United States Navy Privateer and its crew of 10 which disappeared April 8.

Moscow declared the American plane involved that day in an exchange of fire was a "B-29 Flying Fortress" which penetrated 13 miles into Soviet territory south of Lepaya, Latvia, while trying to "photograph Soviet defense installations."

It repeated the assertions of the Soviet protest of April 11 that a B-29 ignored signals to land, fired on Soviet fighters and disappeared toward the Baltic Sea when the Soviet fighters fired back.

Therefore, the note declared, the Soviet government cannot accept even "for examination" the American demands made three days ago.

These demands included compensation, severe punishment of the responsible Soviet aviators, a thorough Soviet investigation of the incident and categorical guarantees against a recurrence.

The Soviet note was handed to United States Ambassador Alan G. Kirk at noon by Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky. It concluded by declaring the United States was trying to "cover up the illegal actions of certain of its subordinates who disgraced themselves by grossly violating the generally recognized rules of international law."

Blasts Budenz Story

Mark of Communism Lacking In His Work, Lattimore Insists

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Owen Lattimore flatly declared yesterday that the primary mission the Communists were supposed to have assigned him, according to the allegations of Louis F. Budenz, is nowhere reflected in the 11 books and hundreds of articles he wrote.

Furthermore, the Far East writer and expert said in a press conference, he does not believe that a single article published in the magazine he edited contained what Budenz described as the principal idea the Communists were trying to peddle.

Lattimore's denial came in a statement he read blasting at the accusations made against him the previous day by Budenz, former managing editor of the Daily Worker. Budenz left the Communist Party in 1945.

Before a Senate investigating committee on Thursday, he testified that he was told by high Communist officials, when he was still in the party, to consider Lattimore as a Communist, subject to the party's control.

Furthermore, Budenz said, he attended meetings at which it was determined to give Lattimore the task of getting Communist writers on the staff of the publications of the Institute of Pacific Relations.

They were to portray the Chinese Communists as nothing but simple agrarian reformers, or "North Dakota Non-Partisan Leaguers."

Bitterly and sarcastically, Lattimore yesterday referred to Budenz's comments that if Latti-

Praise of Police In D. C. Is Costly To Baltimorean

Baltimore, April 21 (AP).—"Why don't you go to Washington and learn how to direct traffic?"

That is the remark which Herman R. Simon, a Baltimorean, tossed in the direction of Patrolman Albert Schumacher after the officer flagged him down at an intersection with frantic hand signals and blasts of his whistle.

Schumacher charged Simon with disorderly conduct, failing to obey an officer and obstructing a sidewalk. Simon had to spend the night in jail.

Magistrate J. Elmer Thater fined him $25 and costs today for the pointed question he asked the officer, but then suspended the fine. Simon still must face the other two charges in traffic court.

Truman Says A Strong U. S. Can Avert War

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Fort Benning, Ga., April 21.—President Truman today called for America to be strong militarily and maintain "leadership" for peace and the welfare of the world as a whole.

If we do, he told the Nation's top military commanders assembled here, a third world war is unlikely.

"I believe in preparedness to prevent hostilities in the world at large," said the President. "It took us two wars and 30 years to find out that our place in the world was one of leadership.

"Now we want to maintain that leadership unless we want to do exactly what we did after the first World War and bring on a third one. I don't think we are going to bring on that third one."

Accompanied by the entire Pentagon high command and part of the Cabinet, Mr. Truman witnessed an impressive demonstration of Army fire power at the infantry school here. Troops of the Third Division, aided by Air Force F-84 jet fighter bombers, put on a realistic attack by an infantry-artillery-tank-plane coordinated "team."

It was followed by an eyeopening exhibition of marksmanship, in which the troops scored bullseyes with every weapon of the infantry division from pistols to 155-millimeter howitzers.

The show ended with the "mad minute" during which all of the division weapons fire at once, pouring out 14,000 rounds in 60 seconds.

But the highlight of the day

$151,000 Grew to $3,363,333 In Coffee Deals of Brazilians

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

A group of Brazilians who ran $151,000 into a tax-free $3,363,333 between last July 31 and March 30 in the soaring coffee market, yesterday blamed American price supports for high coffee prices.

Evidence of the group's operations was uncovered by a Senate Agriculture subcommittee headed by Senator Guy M. Gillette (D., Iowa), in spite of strenuous objections.

The number who profited by the eight-month operations on the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange was a subject of controversy. Paul Hadlick, committee counsel, said there were three plungers from Sao Paulo. Alfred Boedtker of the New York brokerage firm of Volkart Brothers Co. said the Brazilians were commission men and may have represented 100 or more speculators.

Although Boedtker's dealings with the group known as the Escriptorio Suplicy ran into the millions, he insisted he knew little about his customers. The South Americans carried huge balances with him, he said. His firm at times acted as bankers for them purchasing automobiles for their families—one family bought several Cadillacs—and paying fees at schools attended by their children.

The Sao Paulo group included two brothers, Paulo and Luiz Suplicy, and their brother-in-law, Tom Simonsen. Their operations consisted of selling coffee in Brazil and buying it in New York. Hadlick called the business "a cinch," but Broker Boedtker called it "arbitrage."

(Arbitrage is a brokerage term, that means selling a product in one market and at the same time buying it at a lower price in another market. Usually done by professional traders, it has merit in keeping the markets stable.)

Boedtker read a message from his clients which said that the "investigation committee so far has

Acheson Sees World Tense, Doubts War Is Indicated

U. S. Directs Czechs To Close Consulate; Is Retaliation for Ousting of Attache

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

The United States ordered the Communist government of Czechoslovakia yesterday to shut down its consulate in Chicago by May 1.

This was swift and sharp retaliation for Czechoslovakia's latest measures against American diplomatic officials there.

Only last Wednesday the Czechs ordered Joseph C. Kolarek, the American press attache, to get out of the country and demanded the closing of the American information library in Prague and the consulate at Bratislava.

The State Department, in a note to the Czech government, called the Czech actions "utterly unwarranted and based on demonstrably untrue charges" that officials of the American mission were spying.

Intent to Stir Up Trouble

Shortly after releasing the note, Secretary Acheson said the closing of the American library and consulate was only one of a series of related Soviet actions intended to stir up trouble in central and eastern Europe.

He told his press conference that the present situation was tense and serious, although he did not see it moving into armed conflict. Then, with conscious understatement, he said all the recent moves by Russia and her satellites were far from helpful.

In addition to the crackdown on American offices in Czechoslovakia, he cited these other steps as part of a single trouble-making pattern:

(1) The shooting down of an unarmed American Navy plane in the Baltic on April 8; the "fictitious allegations," repeated only yesterday, that the plane was an armed B-29; and the signs that the Soviet government "has made no attempt to institute a real investigation of the matter in accordance with our request;"

Dardanelles Dispute Up

(2) The demand made by the Soviet newspaper Red Fleet to revise the present treaty assuring free traffic through the Dardanelles, an issue which led in 1946 to strong Soviet pressure and a war of nerves against Turkey; and

(3) The Soviet note of Thursday demanding that American and British troops get out of Trieste.

Judging from a summary of the Trieste note, Acheson said it seemed to be "a repetition of a number of outworn arguments with the addition of some new and wholly false allegations of violations of the Italian peace treaty."

"Coming at this time," he said, "such repetition can only be taken as an attempt, under the guise of concern for legality, to disrupt efforts to achieve a solution of the question among the parties most directly concerned."

This was his way of accusing the Russians of trying to break up the present efforts of Yugoslavia and Italy to settle the Trieste is-

Talk With Truman Encourages Lie On Eve of Sailing

Lake Success, April 21 (AP).—Trygve Lie today said he was "encouraged" by his 20-minute talk with President Truman on United Nations affairs, but Lie acknowledged the U. N. situation is worse than ever.

The U. N. Chief Executive made the statement on the eve of sailing on a save-the-U. N. trip that may take him to Moscow. There was speculation Lie might be carrying a message from Mr. Truman to Stalin, but there was no confirmation.

Lie spoke with Mr. Truman at the White House yesterday.

"I believe that all decent people desire in their hearts that the cold war be ended. But it will take time. I do not expect too much. I shall see the leaders of the various countries and obtain information from them, and I should know more about where we all stand when I return," Lie said.

Probers Get Details Of Realtors' Lobby

Dated March 6

AF Official's Resignation Accepted

Arthur S. Barrows has resigned as Undersecretary of the Air Force, the White House announced yesterday.

Barrows' resignation was dated March 6. In it he said he was willing to remain until his resignation can become effective with the least inconvenience to the Air Force.

President Truman in accepting the resignation set no effective date.

Barrows is a former president and vice chairman of the board of Sears Roebuck and Co. He was appointed Undersecretary in September, 1947, and since then has directed the Air Force's procurement activities."

Barrows, who is 63, gave no reason for his resigning, but told Mr. Truman: "It seems to me that the time has come for me to turn over my responsibilities to someone else."

The "grass roots" operation of the real estate lobby with 1100 local boards swinging into action on a signal from Washington was pictured for the House Special Committee on Lobbying Activities yesterday.

The methods by which the huge lobby operates were described in testimony by Calvin K. Snyder, secretary of the Realtors' Washington Committee. Chairman Frank Buchanan (D., Pa.) said the real estate groups' activities were gone into extensively as being typical of the way a big lobby operates.

Snyder said the real estate group found the most effective means of getting across the realtors' point of view was through groups and individuals in a Congressman's home territory.

Up until two years ago, Snyder said, the office here maintained a card index file of all members of Congress, listing beside each name realtors who could best contact him. The index was given up, Snyder said, because it took too much time and effort.

Put into the record was a list of all members of the House and Senate Banking and Currencies Committeees and the House Rules Committee together with the names and addresses of those members of the real estate groups who knew them or could best talk with them.

For Senator A. Willis Robertson (D., Va.) of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee, for example, the following contacts were listed:

Richmond—Claude R. Davenport, 800 State st.; L. R. Fiensten, 1106 E. Main st.; A. L. Adamson, 913 Hull st.; C. I. Arnell, 1009 E. Main st.; Leroy E. Brown, jr., 618 E. Main st.; E. F. Schmidt, 401 E. Frank st.; Otis Lafoon, 118 N. 8th st.. Norfolk—Irving F. Truitt, P. O. Box 2004, and W. S. Herman, Schofield Herman, 116 W. York st.

There were 36 contacts listed for Senator J. William Fulbright (D., Ark.), one of the largest number in the list.

Lafoon was listed as the only contact with Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.), of the Rules Committee.

Next to Buchanan's name the notation was simply that he came from a district where the steel unions were powerful and was in favor of public housing.

Snyder said 600 or 700 members of real estate associations have been designated to keep in touch with lawmakers on legislation affecting the industry.

The first step in the operation of the lobby is the keeping of its members all over the country informed as matters affecting the industry through mimeographed letters and news sheets.

When legislation is about to come up, Washington calls the 1100 local boards, which then go into immediate action. Members either telephone or telegraph their Congressmen. Some come to Washington to see them.

Then there is what was described as the chain telephone system, where realtors will telephone five others to get in touch with the Congressman from that district.

It was developed in testimony and through exhibits also that realtors frequently persuade political figures who agree with their point of view on legislation to join in wires to Congressmen.

Representative Henderson Lanham (D., Ga.) asked if the Realtors Washington Committee ever suggested the form of letter or telegram sent to Congressmen.

'No, sir, we do not," replied Snyder. 'We do not know the local conditions. Only the local people would know exactly how any given legislation would affect that particular community."

'Pied Pipers' Off To Kill Foxes Preying on Cattle

Athens, Texas, April 21 (U.P.).—Fifty modern disciples of the Pied Piper of Hamelin, each equipped with a cow horn caller, marched into the woods of East Texas tonight intent on luring the "crazy foxes of Henderson County" to destruction.

It was difficult at anay distance to tell whether the sounds were those of sick cows or the full-blown notes expected to prove irresistible to foxes.

Number one piper, Adam L. Lindsey was confident it was a night the foxes—and quite possibly the hunters—long would remember.

Rabid foxes have been increasing their attacks on livestock in the region and extermination of the beasts is believed the only answer.

Perfume Firm Paid Maragon While He Was on U. S. Payroll

NYHT News Service

The prosecution produced evidence and testimony yesterday at John Maragon's perjury trial that he was paid $1000 a month by a Chicago perfume company during the same period he was on the Government's payroll as a member of a State Department mission to Greece.

The Government thus sought to substantiate its charge that Maragon, alleged influence-peddler and friend of Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, lied to the Senate Investigations Subcommittee last year when he denied he was employed by the perfume firm while serving on the Greek mission.

Checks totaling $13,000 showed Maragon was employed by Albert Verley & Co. from July, 1945, to August, 1946. Mrs. Jeanette Schwartz, assistant treasurer of the company, testified the checks were for $1000-a-month "fees" paid to the defendant to represent the firm in Europe.

State Department records showed Maragon was a member of the Greek mission from November 27, 1945, to March 14, 1946, at $5600 a year. The checks indicated Maragon was paid $5000 by the Verley company during this period.

Defense Attorney Irvin Goldstein agreed Maragon was a "salaried employe" of the Government during his service with the Greek mission, but attacked the Government's contention Maragon was "employed" at the same time by the Verley company.

Mrs. Schwartz testified that, at Maragon's suggestion, the company's $1000-a-month payments to him were treated as "fees" rather than salary and that no social security or withholding taxes were deducted by the firm.

She added, however, that she "supposed" Maragon was an employe of the company and that he had been hired to take over some of the duties of David A. Bennett, its ailing president. Bennett during this same period sent seven deep-freezers as gifts to General Vaughan, who in turn distributed them to other members of the White House official family. This was not brought out at the trial yesterday, however.

Goldstein brought out that one of the $1000 checks was indorsed by Leslie L. Biffle, secretary of the Senate, who evidently cashed it for Maragon.

The Government produced evidence linking Maragon with another firm which did business with the Government. Three checks totalling $505.80 paid to Maragon by Transamerica Traders, Inc., a firm dealing in surplus property, were placed in evidence.

George H. Chadwick, jr. testized that, as treasurer of the firm, he made out these checks to cover the defendant's expenses in representing the company in dealings with the War Assets Administration.

Charles B. Murray, assistant United States attorney, said the Government had completed its case on three of the four perjury counts against Maragon when the court recessed yesterday afternoon to wind up the first week of the trial. He said the Government expected to rest its case Monday.

The defense has subpenaed more than a score of witnesses, including Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.), a member of the investigations subcommittee. Goldstein said he was not sure whether Vaughan would be called as a defense witness or whether Maragon would take the stand.

More 'Mystery' Blasts Shake Dayton Ara

Dayton, Ohio, April 21 (AP).—Three more mysterious explosions rocked the Dayton area today, about 24 hours after the first blast caused a flood of rumors and telephone calls.

Excited residents said one was near the Wright-Patterson Air Force Base east of the city.

targets and not lay down a barrage on the whole Congress.

Dose of Own Treatment in Films

"We newspapermen have been the target of such a barrage from the movies. When I see a Hollywood version of drunken reporters and double-crossing or venal editors, I am, to use Queen Victoria's phrase, 'not amused.' That treatment is only a taste of what Government officials get day after day from newspapers. . . .

"If we give more encouragement to the good officials and devote more effort to exposing the . . . bad ones, we serve better the cause of good government and make Government service more attractive to the competent men needed to win the cold war, to retain our freedoms, and to make our Government solvent."

Correspondent Trohan delighted the editors with his description of what happens when a newspaper sends its star reporter to Washington. The reporter, he said, looks for an ivory tower, becomes transformed into a statesman, and decides that the important thing is not leg work but brain work.

Acquires "Informed Sources"

Trohan told how the new Washington correspondent, seeking "contacts," heads for the National Press Club bar, and soon is interviewing his colleagues. These become "informed sources."

He told how reporters here form "claques" for Government officials and try to protect them. There was one such claque at the White House, he said, and went on to tell how it became outraged when Arthur Krock of the New York Times got an exclusive interview with President Truman.

Trohan said that the conduct of these White House reporters, when they sought later to show Mr. Truman that he had not behaved well and had hurt their feelings, was "childish."

The Chicago Tribune reporter then tore into the editors themselves for the non-professional assignments they often give their reporters here.

"Washington reporters may not be perfect," he said, "but we're the best reporters you've got—the best the world's got."

Krock told the editors how he tries to clarify the complex and relate the spot news to background in his editorial-page column in the New York Times.

He was asked if his animosity toward an official, or his friendship for one, influenced his interpretative writing. He was asked, also, why he never criticized Bernard M. Baruch. Hadn't Baruch ever made a mistake?

Krock said that, being human, he was of course influenced by his likes and dislikes. He said it was difficult to criticize an official when you liked and admired him, but added that it was something that had to be done.

The Times man said that Baruch, though he rarely is wrong, was very much wrong in a speech he made at the Newport Naval College. He said he pointed this out in a column, although "perhaps gently."

Tells How AP Covers World

Wiliam L. Beale, jr., chief of the Associated Press bureau here, told how his organization covers Washington for the country and the world. William J. White, jr., of the New York News, gave an illustrated talk on picture editing.

At an earlier session, Henry D. Smyth, a member of the Atomic Energy Commission, and Gerard Piel, publisher of the Scientific American, debated the dilemma created by secret weapons and free speech.

Piel told how he burned 3000 copies of his magazine last month at the request of the Atomic Energy Commission, and charged that authorities on atomic energy to whom editors might turn are now "muzzled."

"We are left with handouts," he said. "The muzzling of independent news sources is clearly an indirect, but effective censorship of the press. . . ."

He said, also, that secrecy had "poisoned the relations" between the Atomic Energy Commission and the scientific community of America.

The trouble was, he said, not with the men who run the commission, but with the commission itself. Secrecy, he continued, was a peculiarity of the AEC with which it was endowed at birth; and he thought that the public, the press and Congress all shared the blame.

Smyth Explains Dilemma

Commissioner Smyth summed up the dilemma the commission finds itself in, saying:

"On the other hand, rapid progress in basic science requires free interchange of information. Modern military technology depends on basic science. Therefore, to achieve maximum military strength, we must have free interchange of information.

"On the other hand, we want our military technology to surpass that of our enemies. We want to keep to ourselves our new weapons development on which we spend millions of dollars and the time of thousands of men. Therefore, we must have complete secrecy in both science and technology.

"Either line of argument appears to be logical. It is a real dilemma even before we add to it political arguments for freedom of speech."

David Lawrence Applauded

He said a clear solution would only be possible if the United States knew exactly how to defend itself in the event of another war.

"If it were to be next year," he said, "we should choose complete secrecy; if we were sure that there would be no war for 30 years, we should abandon all secrecy."

David Lawrence, editor of the United States News and World Report, was vigorously applauded when he spoke at the society's luncheon. He had decided not to stand for reelection this time after serving on the board of directors for 20 years.

Reminiscing about his experiences as chairman of the society's program committee, Lawrence told about the 1930 banquet when two important speakers were brought over from Europe. They were Wickham Steed, editor of the London Times, and Andre Geraud, the French writer, better known as "Pertinax."

Lawrence recalled how Steed and Pertinax wanted to know what the United States would do if the Kellogg-Briand pact were violated, and some nation were guilty of aggression. President Hoover was the guest of honor at that 1930 banquet, he said, but he didn't answer the question "for the simple reason that at that time American foreign policy had not been formulated."

"No President could say officially then what the United States would do in the event of aggression in Europe. He would have had to consult Europe.

I often think back to that night—April 20, 1930—because I believe if the United States could have made known formally what it would do in the event of a threat to the peace of the world maybe the Second World War wouldn't have been fought."

Lawrence, in conclusion, suggested to the editors that they test their own degree of tolerance by asking themselves if they agreed with something that was said by the late Oliver Wendell Holmes: "Freedom of speech is freedom for the thought we hate."

Study of Point Four Before Action Urged

By Reserve Board

Risk in Deep Export Cuts Emphasized

The Federal Reserve Board said yesterday that cutting United States exports too far "might have serious social and political repercussions in some foreign countries."

Noting a $2,900,000,000 drop in exports during 1948 was followed by another drop of 900 million dollars in 1949 (to a total of $15,900,000,000—and that a further reduction is in the making this year, the board's April bulletin said:

"There is a point beyond which further cuts in United States exports would affect adversely economic activity and development in the rest of the world, which might have serious social and political repercussions in some foreign countries."

No "danger point" was specified, however. A considerable part of United States exports has been paid for through Government aid grants to foreign countries, mostly under the Marshall Plan. Diminished Marshall Plan spending is planned.

On the score of imports, which the Truman Administration seeks to expand, the board commented:

"Larger United States imports would help to sustain the flow of goods which the rest of the world needs for further development of available resources and steady expansion of economic activity."

Some Senate Republican leaders got behind moves yesterday to block President Truman's "Point Four" program and lop off 600 million dollars in next year's economic-recovery funds for Europe.

Meanwhile, the Senate ran out of speakers on the bill covering these and other foreign-aid projects and quit early, with Majority Leader Lucas urging an agreement Monday to vote before next weekend. Debate began Thursday.

In New York, Paul G. Hoffman, director of the European Cooperation Administration (ECA), issued a statement vigorously opposing any cuts in European Recovery funds. He said that "with the intensification of Communist agitation in the cold war in Europe during recent weeks, I am more convinced than ever that we need the amount requested."

Senators Millikin (R., Colo.) and Saltonstall (R., Mass.) said after a party conference that they will propose an amendment to the pending study of the plan by a nonpartisan commission.

Earlier, in an interview, Senator Taft (R., Ohio) threw his support to a proposal of Senator Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) to cut the European Recovery Program from $3,100,000,000 down to $2,500,000,000.

The party conference of which Millikin is chairman, discussed but did not bind Senate Republicans on any part of the aid measure.

Under Point Four, President Truman proposes to help develop backward world areas through technical assistance and private investments. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee allowed an over-all authorization of 45 million dollars for this project of which 10 million dollars would go for similar programs already approved by Congress.

The House has approved a bill calling for a 250-million-dollar ECA cut and a 20-million-dollar slash in proposed Point Four funds.

Millikin said there is a division of opinion among Republicans over Point Four. He said he and Saltonstall believe such a program should be delayed until Congress knows what it's all about.

"There should be an independent study made by some group like the Hoover Commission, which studied Government reorganization," said the Colorodan.

He proposed the inquiry be made by a commission of Representatives of the Senate, House, executive departments and the public.

The authorization bill before the Senate also includes 100 million dollars each for use in the China area and in Korea, and $27,450,000 for Arab refugees.

Nationalists Claim Victory

Taipei Formosa, April 21 (AP).—Defeat of the 5-day-old Communist invasion of Hainan Island was claimed late tonight by the Chinese Nationalists.

Nationalist accounts said 6000 Reds surrendered and 2000 to 4000 were killed in all-night battles that ended at dawn today. In the Hainan capital city of Hoihow, firecrackers popped in celebration. Stanley Rich, Associated Press staff man at Hoihow, said the Nationalists might not be doing as well as they asserted. He said he saw a training plane struggling into the air Friday evening with a 25-pound bomb strapped under each wing. He said bombing could be heard in Hoihow. Bombers took off from the Hoihow field all day long.

Other dispatches indicated, however, the Nationalists might indeed have won a victory.

The Navy said it smashed a Red attempt to push reinforcements onto Hainan, sinking 40 junks. The Hainan garrison announced two Russians were among the prisoners taken in the fighting 25 to 45 miles west of Hoikow.

Economist Sees Danger In 'Point Four' Program

Philadelphia, April 20 (AP).—A Duke University economist said today industrial nations like the United States should look before they leap to help industrialize under-developed countries.

Professor Joseph J. Spengler said there are many difficulties in industrialization of countries like those of Asia, Africa and Latin America, because of population density, low average income and concentration of the labor force in agriculture.

Spengler told the annual meeting of the American Philosophical Society:

"It will be difficult for the under-developed countries to secure sufficient capital for industrialization. Low incomes permit little saving. Because many of the political and other institutions of the under-developed countries are defective, they frequently represent bad investment risk."

U. S. Bombs Jolt Princess

Valletta, Malta, April 21 (U.P.).—The crash of practice bombs from a swarm of U. S. Navy planes today jolted Britain's Princess Elizabeth into dropping her dessert at a birthday party.

Planes from the carrier Midway began blasting the tiny island of Filfa, a mile off the Maltese coast, shortly after noon. The pilots apparently did not know it was Elizabeth's twenty-fourth birthday.

Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh were observing the day by lunching with Vice Admiral Earl Mountbatten and Countess Mountbatten.

Elizabeth was dipping some dessert from a dish held by a steward when the first American bombs fell with a shattering crash.

The Princess, reported expecting her second child, leaped to her feet, dropped the spoon, and with her husband and the Mountbattens ran to the roof.

When they had determined the cause of the explosions, the party returned and continued lunch. The blasts continued, but the royal party took no further notice.

Lightning Strikes Plane . . .

Bolling Air Force Photo

LANDS SAFELY—Lightning slashed this hole in the tail assembly of an Air Force hospital plane, knocking out one engine. The C-54 carrying 29 persons, including 16 patients, was struck over Gordonsville, Va., about 100 miles west of Washington. It landed safely at Bolling Air Base. No one was injured. Pilot Lieut. Billy Payne and copilot Capt. William O'Connell were flying the ship from Kelly Air Force Base, San Antonio, Tex.

Russian Atom Blast Mystery Solved, Rep. Elston Declares

Representative Elston (R., Ohio) says the United States has solved the case of the atomic explosion in Russia last year.

"We know definitely that it was caused by an atomic bomb," the Congressman told a reporter, "and we know what the ingredients of that bomb were."

Elston is a member of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, which deals with A-bomb and other related matters and has inquired closely into the Russian atomic blast.

He declined to disclosed how the United States Government obtained information about the Russian explosion, or to discuss the Russian bomb further.

True Bomb

There has been much speculation in this country over whether the Russians had a true bomb, or whether the blast might even have been caused by some disastrous accidental explosion of a Russian atomic experimental plant. When President Truman told of it last September 23 he used the words "an atomic explosion."

"Definitely the Russians don't have the hydrogen bomb yet, any more than we do," Elston added. "We know as much about the potentialities of a hydrogen bomb as they do, and they know as much as we do, and no more. Neither of us even knows definitely how to explode an H-bomb."

Elston is working for a 583 million dollar increase in congressional appropriations for developing the United States air strength. He contends this country should work toward an air force of 70 groups by 1955, but that instead United States air strength is being cut back toward 42 groups.

"Russian strategy is pretty clear," he said. "If war should come, they will hope to fill the sky with swarms of attack planes, in the hope that even a couple of them might get through to their targets. That is the obvious explanation of their program of developing an immense air force in recent years.

"We could tell you probably in 1-2-3-4-5 order the targets they would select. We can't afford to risk weakening our air defenses so that even one of those targets might be knocked out by an A-bomb."

Elston said American soldiers who saw the Russians fight in World War II were "amazed at how the Russians will sacrifice manpower to get to an objective. They have plenty of manpower and to them, life is cheap and the man is expendable.

"We can expect the same fighting methods from the air—sacrifice as many planes as necessary in the hope of getting one or two of them through."

U. S. Orders Czechs to Close Chicago Office

sue, long a bone of contention between them.

Acheson called it "nonsense" to say that the Allied authorities in Trieste were suppressing human rights and liberties. "Anyone who has been to Trieste can plainly see for himself" that the Soviet charge was false, he declared; the American and British authorities in Trieste also report regularly and openly to the Security Council of the United Nations, which has jurisdiction over the Free Territory of the city and its surroundings.

The Secretary said American and British troops were in Trieste "in complete conformity with the obligations of the Italian Peace Treaty"; the Western powers had made every effort to get agreement on the appointment of a U. N. governor, which would end the military occupation, "until the peace treaty provisions establishing the Free Territory were proved unworkable."

"Since then, as the Soviet government well knows, we have consistently sought a constructive settlement of this question in the interests of peace and stability," the Secretary said. Only last week the Western powers asked Yugoslavia and Italy to try to settle the issue between them.

In Belgrade, the United Press reported, diplomatic observers predicted the Soviet note would promote direct negotiations between Yugoslavia and Italy, although its intention was to block them.

British Foresee Rejection

In London, British officials said the Russian note on Trieste would be rejected by all the Western "Big Three" powers.

(In Washington, the retiring Yugoslav Ambassador, Sava Kosanovic, said his country would be willing to consider a "direct agreement" with Italy on the Trieste problem.)

In ordering the Czechs yesterday to close their Chicago consulate, the State Department made it plain that it was acting in reprisal.

"Serious Consequences"

It told the Czechs that the United States "was obliged to comply" with the order expelling Kolarek and closing the American offices, and added sternly:

"The Czechoslovak government must, however, expect that its action cannot escape serious consequences affecting various aspects of the relations betwen the two governments.

"The attitude of Czechoslovak authorities compels the United States Government to review the scope of activities of Czechoslovak establishments in the United States.

"Since the Czechoslovak government has unjustifiably insisted on the curtailment of normal diplomatic and consular functions of the United States in Czechoslovakia it will understand the request made herewith, as an immediate result of that review, that it close its Consulate General in Chicago, Ill., not later than May 1, 1950."

The closing will leave the Czechs with an embassy in Washington and consulates in New York, Cleveland, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, and the Panama Canal Zone. The New York office distributes several Czech publications.

Further action against the remaining American officials in Czechoslovakia is expected to lead to the closing of other Czech consulates in this country. Relations have not yet reached the point at which all normal diplomatic business is impossible, as in the recent instance of Bulgaria, but officials here see conditions worsening steadily.

Yesterday's note said it was clear that Czechoslovakia "does not adhere to the diplomatic practices normally observed by the community of nations." It accused the Czechs of using police pressure" to obtain statements against the United States from Czech employes of the American library.

The real object of shutting the American library, it said, was "to impose barriers to the entry of truth from abroad and to the free inquiry of minds at home."

Not in Czech Tradition

"This obvious fear of truth is not in the tradition of the Czechoslovak people, who have shown throughout their history a stubborn aversion to attempts at thought control. The Government and people of the United States are convinced that such efforts of the Czechoslovak government to repress freedom of thought and the desire for impartial information will never stand the test of time in the modern world."

An earlier note accused the Czech police of violating "the most fundamental human right" in trying to entrap Miss Katharine Kosmak, an American citizen, director of the American library at Prague.

An affidavit by Miss Kosmak, attached to the note, said the police by "use of fear and threats" had tried to exploit a romance with a former employe, Ivan Elbl, so that she would make false charges against the American information service. Elbl is one of a group of former Czech employes who have signed statements that the American library was used for spying.

The American Embassy "expects" the Czech government to make "a suitable apology" to Miss Kosmak for the "improper" acts of the police.

West Chiefs Ask Free Berlin Election

While Son Rules

Leopold Held Ready to Stay Out of Nation

Brussels, April 21 (AP).—Reliable sources said King Leopold today agreed to stay out of Belgium while his 19-year-old son, Prince Baudouin, takes over interim rule.

The informants said the exiled monarch's decision was a concession to the Socialists who have agreed to accept a compromise in the royal crisis, provided Leopold keeps out of Belgium while his son holds power.

Leopold has announced he was ready to abandon temporarily his powers to his son.

On that basis a solution in principle was then agreed on by delegates from the Socialist, Social Christian (Catholic) and Liberal Parties.

Final agreement was about to be reached when the Socialists refused to let Leopold stay in Belgium during the time his powers are assumed by Baudouin. The Socialist General Council turned down the plan, 229-19. Final decision rests with the Socialist Executive Committee.

Appraised of this by telephone, informants said, Leopold consented to keep out of Belgium. Socialists have bitterly opposed his return to the throne and feared he would exercise power behind the scenes if he remained while his son is Regent.

The Social Christian Party hopes Baudouin's tenure will be temporary and will lead to full restoration of power to Leopold while the Socialists want the delegation of powers to Baudouin eventually to be permanent.

[The United Press reported that the Social Christians had ratified a plan to let Leopold remount the throne for 18 days, then leave for a "long" trip abroad. It added that the Socialists could not make up their minds on this plan.]

Berlin, April 21 (NYHT).—The three Western Commandants of Berlin tonight issued a public call to Maj. Gen. Alexander Kotikov, Soviet commandant, to agree to free elections for Berlin, to reunite the four sectors and return to four-power rule through the Allied Kommandatura, from which he walked out nearly two years ago.

No one expected him to do any of these things, especially since the Soviet-controlled press had denounced the idea of general elections earlier in the day as "a tragi-comedy directed by the Western Commandants of Berlin."

Nevertheless, Western political strategists calculated that Soviet rejection of the Western bid again would clearly fix responsibility for continued division of the city.

The first move was a resolution adopted yesterday by the Western Berlin City Assembly requesting all four commandants to arrange free elections.

Tonight, the three Western commandants issued what could be considered a challenge as well as an invitation to General Kotikov to accept the proposal.

Earlier, American High Commissioner John J. McCloy virtually rejected a request of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer for speedy revision of the occupation statute.

McCloy said the date for considering revision of the statute still is this fall and he knows of no immediate intention on the part of the foreign ministers of the United States, Britain and France to discuss it at their London conference in May.

He indirectly reproved Adenauer by saying that relaxation of the statute depends not simply on the passage of time but on the progress Germany makes toward democracy.

The recent resurgence of nationalism in Germany is believed to have spoiled Adenauer's chances of getting the High Commission to relax and then abolish the occupation statues in the near future.

2 Summoned On Tax Charge

Summons have been issued for two Arlington County businessmen who have not yet paid delinquent county business license taxes, Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Paul Brown said yesterday.

The summonses are the first step in court action planned against about 100 merchants who still owe the business taxes, due January 31, Brown said.

Ship Tieup Averted; Hiring Issue Settled

New York, April 21 (AP).—A national shipping tieup was averted today when 4000 AFL deck officers settled a lengthy contract dispute with 40 ship operators.

A compromise plan for hiring officers was agreed to by the AFL masters mates and pilots union to end the deadlock.

As a result, they called off a strike scheduled for midnight Saturday.

Seven other AFL maritime unions, whose 300,000 members service vessels at sea and in port, had pledged support in the event of a deck officers strike.

Early today negotiations brought an agreement by the operators to hire only union deck officers. The union agreed the hiring need not be done through a union hiring hall.

However, the officers must clear through the hall and establish that they are union men in good standing.

An exception to the general compromise are relief mates, who usually take over when a vessel is in port. At least 50 percent of these must be hired through hiring halls.

Both sides have 90 days to work out a pension and welfare plan. In addition, the agreement granted deck officers a monthly clothing allowance of $7.50 and $10,000 worth of flight insurance for men en route by plane to or from a ship assignment.

Federal Mediation Chief Cyrus S. Ching assigned his special assistant, Clyde M. Mills, to aid the union and operators in reaching the strike-averting agreement.

UMW Urges Bypassing of Coal Probe

John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers yesterday urged Congress to pass up a White House-proposed plan to investigate the "sick" coal industry, but instead to establish a national policy on all fuels "in the interest of American security."

The UMW's executive board, in session here, also joined with the coal operators in calling for limitation and taxation of oil imports.

The board took no action on two bills now before Congress to create price regulations and other controls over the coal industry, but authorized its officers to act when and if the need arises.

Thomas L. Kennedy, UMW vice president, said that the union wanted no part of President Truman's proposal for a congressional inquiry into the coal industry. The UMW believes such matters can be solved best by the operators and union, "without interference from Congress," Kennedy said.

Racing Wires Help Gambling

Morrison said "competent authorities" have reported that Continental is controlled by "heirs of the Capone gang." He quoted from a Federal Communications Commission report that the wire service in 1944 had 16,639 miles of leased wires to serve some 50,000 bookies over the Nation through 305 localities.

Morrison said the bill under consideration was the "top recommendation" of the recent Attorney General's crime conference as a means of smashing interstate crime today.

"Cop on Beat" Bribed

The mayor said commercialized gambling brings "constant bribery of public officials" down to the cop on the beat. He called the leased wire setup "the most vicious thing that exists today."

Morrison said that when his city forced Continental to remove its ticker from New Orleans, the service retreated into adjoining Jefferson Parish from which race information now is phoned to bookies in the city.

Miami's Mayor William Wolfarth testified that public officials are up against "a ruthless, determined, able organization which is national in scope and which has the funds, facilities and the power to frustrate or nullify to a large extent the most sincere and determined local law enforcement efforts."

He said today's interstate crime is "ruled by men who have tremendous business and executive ability, who are smooth operators in every sense of the word and who came into power not by guns but by shrewd political maneuvering and the use of unlimited funds."

Local Officials Could Act

The race wire bill, together with a ban on slot machines already approved by the Senate, would so "cripple" the interstate operators that local officials could then step in "for the final house cleaning," the mayor declared.

"All we can do is trim the vine," he said. The Federal Government must "cut the roots."

Wolfarth said that "no State can destroy the wire service." He described the extensive interstate phone operations now used to bring racing news into Florida, where the State has banned the wires. He called the news service the "root of the whole thing."

Florida's Attorney General Richard W. Ervin said that since his State's Legislature last year banned the wire service the legal pari-mutual machines had been taking in an additional $200,000 to $300,000 daily which, presumably, used to be bet off the track with bookies.

Ervin described how bookies "steal" race track results with such devices as a radio set strapped inside a man's girdle with an aerial down his pants legs.

Asked AP Cooperation

He also told how the State had sought to have the Associated Press stop sending flash race results on its own wires, a service which, he said, AP buys in New York from Continental. Ervin said AP General Manager Frank Starzel refused on grounds of freedom of the press.

Ervin recounted the story of 26-year-old Edward McBride, now a University of Miami student, who recently testified at an FCC hearing that he was the sole owner of Continental but had no active part in it and didn't know how it operated. The youth's father is Arthur (Mickey) McBride, millionaire Cleveland sportsman and taxi magnate.

Finally, a statement from Attorney General Price Daniel of Texas was presented to the committee by an aide. Daniel said Continental had "drops" in seven Texas cities until the State drove them out and forced a switch to phone calls for bringing in race information to bookies.

Daniel said that "if there is a Nation-wide crime syndicate in existence, its life blood is the interstate transmission of gambling information."

Bill Would Bar Strike In Railway Act Field

Senator Donnell (R., Mo.) yesterday introduced a bill to outlaw any strike or lockout in any dispute coming within the scope of the Railway Labor Act.

"There is no equivocation in this bill," Donnell told the Senate. He said it is designed to prevent interference with the movement interstate commerce.

The practical effect of the bill would be to bar all strikes and lockouts materially affecting rail operations.

Besides providing for compulsory arbitration by presidential fact-finding boards, it would make it unlawful for any person, carrier or labor union to try to force, or conspire to obtain, a strike or walkout or to give aid, direction or financial assistance to strike or walkout.

A. B. & W. Seeks Fare Boost

The A. B. & W. Bus Co. yesterday served notice that it wants to include the fare between the District and Government installations in Virginia in a fare increase request it plans to file this month.

A special 10-cent rate now applies on trips between Washington and the Pentagon, Navy Annex, Airport and Arlington Farms, via both the Alexandria, Barcroft & Washington, and Arnold Bus Lines. A recent fare increase on Arnold Line rates did not affect the Pentagon fare.

In a brief filed yesterday with the Interstate Commerce Commission, a company spokesman said the ICC was asked to exempt the 10-cent fare from an order establishing special rates between Washington and the Government installations.

If its request is granted, A. B. & W. officials could include the special Pentagon rate in an overall fare increase request for higher interstate and intrastate fares.

However, a joint 16-cent Capital Transit. A. B. & W. fare would not be affected by the bus company's request.

Beverly C. May, general manager of the firm, said last week the company would ask the ICC for a fare increase sometime this month.

He said the company is more than $30,000 in the red so far this year, and could not pay a wage boost requested by AFL drivers and maintenance men without the fare hike.

Cow Time

If Washington's annual bout with Congress over daylight saving time were not so annoying, it would be funny. Every year the same old objections are trotted out—the farmers in some State don't like fast time, someone in Podunk may miss his favorite radio program, the cows of Patagonia have signed a formal petition denouncing it. When all the oratory is spent, Congress usually comes through with the authorization just under the deadline—carefully limiting the sanction, however, to just one year.

Fortunately, the Senate yesterday came to its senses and voted a daylight time bill without the one-year restriction. Even the familiar objections which had blocked consideration on the unanimous consent calendar did not provoke the several-hour or several-day debate that resulted in the past. In the House, however, a one-year extension has squeaked through the District Committee by just 1 vote. We hope that this does not indicate a prolonged debate when the full House considers the measure on Monday. No one can object to a few legislators impressing their constituents at the expense of voteless Washington. But if this kowtowing to the cow towns is carried much further, Congress is likely to create a suspicion that an Arkansas heifer carries more weight on Capitol Hill than a District citizen.

Putting On The Heat

It would be logical for the Russians, fresh from their successes in the Far East, to start a peace offensive against the Western world. But the Russian mind is pretty hard to fathom. Instead of such a campaign, the Muscovites have unloaded a hostile offensive, having in rapid succession downed an American plane in the Baltic, raised the problem of Trieste, brought up the problem of the Dardanelles, and closed the USIS office at Prague. Your guess about the reason for this activity is as good as ours, but visitors from Berlin are unanimously of the opinion that a new cockiness is apparent among the Russians. All that is clear is that the State Department feels that the order has gone out from the Kremlin that the initiative must be retained.

The issues over the Dardanelles and Trieste are old stuff. One of the worst postwar decisions—on a par with the belated decision to internationalize Jerusalem—was the agreement to set up the Free Territory of Trieste under United Nations jurisdiction. The pact merely insured for a nonviable Trieste the status of a permanent poorhouse. Fortunately the idea was stillborn. There was no agreement over a governor, and the powers other than Russia thus recognized realities, as well as executed a smart coup, when they agreed to recommend return of the Free Territory to Italian sovereignty. The recommendation, of course, required Russian concurrence, and this—equally of course—was not forthcoming. The hope recently has been that in view of Tito's break with the Kremlin there might be a direct settlement along these lines between Rome and Belgrade, and some overtures have been made. Into this delicate situation, however, the Russians have just heaved a demand for withdrawal of the Anglo-American garrison and for return to the Free Territory status which they themselves blocked over the governorship issue.

In the matter of the Dardanelles, Russia makes a case for a revision of the present legal status of the waterway accompanied by a charge of American aggression. One would think that the United States had done nothing to accommodate Russia in the matter of the Dardanelles. A new regime is clearly necessary there which would take Russia's interests into account. For the Montreux Convention in 1936, under which the waterway is governed, partly shut the Russian window onto the Mediterranean by forbidding transit through the Dardanelles to belligerent warships. Accordingly, Secretary Byrnes on November 7, 1945, advanced four principles as a basis for international revision of the Montreux Convention. However, Russia was not interested. It was made apparent that Moscow thinks that the status of the Dardanelles, in spite of the world convention governing it, is purely an issue among the Black Sea nations. Turkey, of course, is the most vitally affected of these nations, for the Dardanelles is a ditch through the body of Turkey, and, along with Turkey, there are Russia and her two stooges, Bulgaria and Romania. Surely it is apparent that Turkey would have little say in negotiations with such a combination.

The timing of Russia's representations, together with the Baltic and Czech incidents, shows that the Soviet thinks it can capitalize either on its present advantage in the Far East or on what it thinks is the American disadvantage at home. It would be well in this latter connection to make the effort to look at ourselves as others are seeing us. If foreign visitors see a spectacle of confusion and near-hysteria, this must be how we appear to the Russians. The time to close ranks is surely before rather than after catastrophe, so as to prevent it; otherwise the Russian amoeba will flow over the ramparts of the American security unobserved.

Money For Planes

No one interested in an adequate military defense can wish to see military aviation stinted if in fact more money is necessary. If the Joint Chiefs of Staff now have concluded that the $12.8 billion defense budget approved by the House Appropriations Committee does not carry enough money for Air Force and Navy plane procurement, their opinion deserves great weight. Their reported recommendation conforms with General Eisenhower's testimony urging more funds to keep plane strength modern. It contradicts, however, the opinion General Bradley is known to have held recently that the $12.8 billion figure, while not setting a precedent for the future, was sufficient to cover minimum present needs.

The trouble with all plane figures is that there is no really satisfactory yardstick by which to judge them. Obviously it is inaccurate to contrast total American planes with total Russian planes without taking into account kind and quality. The number of Air Force groups is not a reliable index, because the size and composition of groups often changes. Nor is there any conclusive standard of up-to-dateness. What is considered modern depends upon the way obsolescence is determined, and present obsolescence standards may be a good deal more arbitrary than necessary.

Perhaps the best indicator, as Walter Lippmann has pointed out, is air-frame weight—the number of pounds of aircraft purchased annually. During fiscal 1950 the Air Force will have bought approximately 21 million air-frame pounds; the present 1951 budget calls for 24 million. What General Eisenhower has asked for, and presumably the Joint Chiefs now want, is about 31 million. In some respects the needs of naval aviation appear more serious, since carrier planes are vital to antisubmarine warfare, a known and generally appreciated weak spot in defense.

What Congress ought to understand fully, if Secretary Johnson asks budget additions, is that a larger procurement program probably means a higher replacement rate and automatically will hike future budgets. That may be necessary, but there ought to be no mistake about it. Certainly as an adjunct to any increase the Joint Chiefs ought to give the obsolescence factor new scrutiny. It does not make sense to write off a plane regardless of condition and the kinds of planes it might have to fight.

Finally, defense officials and Congress must give some thought as to whether additional aircraft procurement is within the context of Atlantic Pact responsibilities. General Bradley has indicated that the American balance of forces may have to give way to the over-all balance of the Western powers. That may have considerable bearing on the kinds of new armament this country purchases. The important point here, of course, is that before the United States can figure its contribution in such terms, the Europeans themselves must rise above nationalistic pride and get busy on a genuine military division of labor.

Mr. Dulles' Book

John Foster Dulles' book War or Peace should be put alongside Vannevar Bush's book, Modern Arms and Free Men, as required reading for the Cold War. They preach preparedness without hysteria, and faith in success without hostilities. The Dulles book has added importance because Mr. Dulles will now be at the elbow of Mr. Acheson in a consultative capacity. The two men have much to give to each other, for Mr. Dulles has had a rich experience at international conferences, and, in addition, never forgets that, in Mr. Churchill's words, force means nothing without moral force.

Mr. Dulles' confidence in the United Nations is undimmed by disillusion with the Soviet Union. To him the U. N. must still be the cornerstone of our foreign policy. The State Department still repeats the phrase, but in the higher reaches only by rote, and the diplomats may get a new infusion of fidelity to the world organization from contact with Mr. Dulles. At least we hope so. That Mr. Dulles is no pro forma adherent is indicated by his plan of U. N. reform. He would make the U. N. truly universal, get over the veto difficulty by weighted representation, and revive the Security Council by admitting Communist China—all changes that have been advocated in these columns.

Mr. Dulles' coverage of the problems of foreign policy would pass any reasonable test of nonpartisanship. However, he slurs over some awkward issues, he is more or less uncritical, and the section on China is not truly impartial. However, the blemishes in this handy little book are quite minor. Mr. Dulles is a believer in the offensive in policy-making, and would press the cause of unity in Europe, for instance, incessantly. It is only in this place that he criticizes the State Department, and this for lack of activism. Mr. Dulles goes far enough to verge on advocacy of Atlantic Union. At any rate, he holds this out for future realization, and winds up with a plea for the recognition of the moral factors in policy-making.

We hope this dollar book will have wide circulation. In that event it will add to the sum of knowledgeability and at the same time strengthen the diplomatic arm in acting dynamically.

Public Trial

Judge Aubrey Fennell found an eminently sensible solution to a delicate problem that arose in Municipal Court on Thursday. In a morals case involving two teen-age girl complainants, he decided, wisely and properly, we think, to exclude the public from the courtroom, with the consent of the prosecuting and defense attorneys. Initially his order included the newspapermen present. In response to a protest on their part, however, he ruled that they had an "inherent" right to attend the trial along with the parties to the action and their lawyers, officers of the law, and members of the bar.

The right to a public trial is guaranteed by the Sixth Amendment to the Constitution and has, of course, a much more ancient origin. It is rooted not only in abhorrence of star chamber proceedings but also in a belief, according to Wigmore, that if trials are public they may elicit voluntary testimony from witnesses unknown to the parties and that the conduct of trials in public will enable spectators to learn about their Government and gain confidence in their judicial remedies. But so far as the Constitution is concerned, a public trial is a right granted to a defendant and may be waived by him.

Moreover, the courts have held that in cases involving sexual offenses youthful spectators may be excluded, in the discretion of the judge, when the evidence involves scandalous matters likely to have a demoralizing effect on them. Some State courts have held, in addition, that in cases involving sexual offenses it is permissible to exclude the general public entirely, the press included, especially in situations where the prosecuting witness is of such tender years as to be seriously embarrassed by the presence of spectators not concerned with the trial. A decision by the Third Circuit Court of Appeals last year held that "the Sixth Amendment precludes the general indiscriminate exclusion of the public from the trial of a criminal case in a Federal court over the objection of the defendant."

Since there was no objection by the defendant in the case before Judge Fennell, the judge might have been within his authority in barring the press as well as the general public out of consideration for the young complaining witnesses. But it seems to us that the protest of the reporters was a reasonable and conscientious one and that the judge was wise to reverse himself and admit them. Their presence was not an embarrassment to the witnesses and it served in a useful way to afford the public the kind of check upon judicial procedure which ought never to be absent in a free society.

Georgia Votes

Few people outside of Georgia have any use for the discredited county-unit system of voting. It is this obsolete and discriminatory system which keeps the Talmadge faction in power, for it gives much greater weight to the votes of the backwoods counties than to Georgia's urban centers. Undoubtedly one reason for this discrimination is that Negroes vote in much greater numbers in the cities than in the rural areas. In one Georgia county a primary vote is said to count for 120 times as much as a big city vote. From every consideration of fairness and of sound representative government this distorted system of rule by part of the people ought to be set right. By a vote of 7 to 2, however, the Supreme Court says that it is not the agency to bring about the reform.

Two voters of Georgia's most populous county asked the court to restrain the State from adhering to the county-unit statute in the forthcoming Democratic Party primary. The majority replied: "Federal courts consistently refuse to exercise their equity powers in cases posing political issues arising from a State's geographical distribution of electoral strength among its political subdivisions." That is the traditional attitude of the courts toward political issues. If the discrimination were put on grounds of race, the court could undoubtedly intervene under the Fifteenth Amendment. But all big county voters under the county unit system suffer the same diminution of influence.

Apparently Georgia will have to straighten out its own perversion of representative government. That will be admittedly difficult. But we suspect that if the people of the large counties agitate their grievance long and loud they will win in the end. Majorities have a way of making their will effective if their cause is just and if they are unrelenting in their demands. And victories won in that way are likely to be more permanent than adjustments by lawsuit even if the Supreme Court felt free to get itself involved in this sort of political issue.

Remnants of a short career.

Congressional Benefits

Several Congressmen have publicly expressed the opinion that the benefits of the Federal workers are more than adequate. No thought is given to the facts that Federal workers have no bargaining rights; are not protected by any medical insurance or unemployment compensation benefits; receive no severance pay; and have their standard of living subjected to the whims and whams of electioneering, economy-falsifying Congressmen.

What about the "infinitesimal benefits" enjoyed by our Congressmen?

The annual salary of our Congressmen is now $12,500, plus a $2500 tax-free expense account. Last year they voted themselves an extra $3000 a year for clerical hire and a $500 allowance for telephone and telegraph charges. Total for clerical hire is $12,500 a year plus another $500 for stationery material. Then there is the little matter of free postage. A lot of Congressmen draw their $500 stationery and $500 telephone and telegraph allowance in cash. For travel expenses the Congressmen receive 20 cents a mile to and from their homes.

There is much talk about pensions these days, but nobody can beat the generous pension system of our Congressmen. Although most Congressmen oppose socialized medicine, they (and their families) all receive free medical care. Walter Reed Hospital and Bethesda Naval Hospital are favorite hospitals of congressional members. Bed and board cost only $8.75 per day, but everything else is free.

Congressmen receive other benefits, all too numerous to mention here.

All benefits to Congressmen are paid from the funds of the National Treasury, which means from the taxes paid by the public (including the 1.5 million Federal classified workers). Some Congressmen apparently have forgotten this seemingly obscure but important fact.

Church In Politics

Just a few comments on Ralph M. Jones' April 14 letter on the Catholic Church in politics.

Contrary to Mr. Jones' belief, churches are not political institutions nor are they concerned with politics as such. However, whenever a political party or an entire government infringes on a man's religious rights, it is the duty of his ecclesiastical leader to protest.

Mr. Jones claims that Pius XII's attack on the Italian Communist Party was out of his jurisdiction. Communism is something more than a political party. It is a basically anti-religious movement, secularistic and totalitarian, whose avowed aim is the establishment of an international dictatorship calling for the complete subjugation of the individual to civil government. Therefore Pius had no choice but to condemn the political party which sought to establish this form of government in Italy.

The Church (and the democracies) erred in trying to play ball with Mussolini and Hitler, but it didn't take too long to see its mistake. In Italy things were pretty chummy when the Lateran Treaty was signed. Exactly four months and three days after its signing Pius XI denounced Mussolini's doctrine of state absolutism which made provision for government education of children along nationalistic and imperialistic lines. Then on June 29, 1931, Archbishop Spellman smuggled out of Italy to the Associated Press in Paris Pius condemnation of fascism, Non Abbiamo Bisogno. Mussolini thought enough of the papal attack to execute his chief of police and jail 14 of his subordinates for failure to intercept the encyclical.

As to nazism, German bishops early spotted its evil nature and forbade Catholics to join it. With a promise from Hitler that religious liberty would be accorded the Church, an uneasy truce ensued, but criticism quickly broke out with Cardinal Faulhaber of Munich taking the lead. Pius XI finally condemned German fascism in March, 1937, with the publication of the encyclical Mit Brennender Sorge.

Now a note on Mr. Jones' source of information, The Vatican in World Politics, by Avro Manhattan. Martin Ebon, in the Saturday Review of Literature says: ". . . Anyone looking for a thoroughly objective book on the subject, for a critical and fair evaluation, will be disappointed . . . (the author) has selected his material largely from ultraright sources and so his book is weighted heavily on the side of the least enlightened and least attractive expressions of Catholic opinion and action." Shoe Shine Boys

The other day, while standing in front of the 18th and G st. nw. branch of the YMCA, I saw one of their officials reprimand and chase to the other side of the street some very young colored boys engaged in earning a few cents shining shoes, an occupation prevailing the world over. Sunday, April 16, I again witnessed an act against these very same lads which annoyed me.

The patrolman on the beat questioned each youngster as to their home location and upon discovering that neither lived in the immediate area, said "Go to your own section and stay there!" A young soldier heard, saw and was also angered.

I thought that this should be reported to police headquarters and phoned in for clarification and was told it is against the law! When I told the person to whom I spoke how unnecessarily nasty the officer was I was told: "He could have arrested them."

Wouldn't it be easier, if necessary, to license a number of these youngsters and allow them to earn these few pennies which mean so much to them? F. B.

Defense Reminder

Remember the "Panay"? Where a patently unfriendly nation gets "trigger-happy," isn't it time that we economize on something other than defense?

Defeat Of The Kerr Bill

Undoubtedly the Kerr amendment to the Natural Gas Act of 1938 was beaten in the final stretch by an ill-informed press, irresponsible columnists, and well-intentioned, but erring, municipal officials of America's largest cities who succumbed to inaccurate information and pressure from a major labor union that was interested to an extreme in keeping its large segment of coal miners in the pits of an ailing industry suffering from acute gas pains.

Quantities of natural gas most assuredly will be reduced the instant any manner of Federal regulation is exercised by the Federal Power Commission, for virtually all major independent producers have long-time contracts with transporting companies that can become nullified only if any Federal regulation of independents is begun. Wholesale cancellation of present contracts is a certainty in the event of FPC control, and less gas decidedly means higher gas prices to the consumer.

Independent producers generally have gas as a by-product of oil drilling, and total sales in interstate commerce last year reached only 70 million dollars. To maintain their independence, these producers in all likelihood will convert their natural gas into liquid gas, to fertilizer, or to carbon black, while supplies owned by natural gas companies will be about all consumers can expect.

The Kerr bill was a wholesome one and its enactment into law would have changed nothing that has ever, or is now, in effect. It merely clarified a confusing passage of the Natural Gas Act of 1938 that the Federal Power Commission—and President Truman—urged the Eightieth Congress to enact, and the Priest bill, fully sanctioned by these men, was speedily enacted. It was virtually identical to the Kerr bill.

Later, however, under the leadership of Leland Olds, the FPC reversed its position by a 3-to-2 agreement. This same Mr. Olds was rejected by the most decisive vote the Senate has turned down a nominee in recent history when his term was to be renewed.

An even more controversial Moore-Rizley bill was adopted by the House in the Eightieth Congress, and the Harris bill was easily agreed to during the first session of this Congress. It was the Harris bill, amended by Senators Kerr and Thomas for the benefit of consumer protection, that the President vetoed last week.

It is strange, however, that every committee chairman in the Senate, with the exception of Senators Chavez, Neely and Tydings, voted for the bill and strongly fought for its adoption. Even Senator Byrd and Senator Taft gave their full approval to the measure, as did leaders in the House of Representatives.

Even after the Supreme Court ruled on the status of independent producers, all but one member of the Federal Power Commission joined in issuing an order—still in effect—guaranteeing this type producer freedom from fear of Federal regulation.

Upon this assurance, producers in the Southwest expanded their production and enabled transporters to bring this cheapest of all fuels to areas in all parts of the Nation—and at a price that has steadily declined for 12 years.

The Kerr amendment simply stated that these companies could continue in the future, as they have in the past, in running their own affairs. It further pointed out that in the event of unscrupulous price rises, an investigation would be made and results reported to the President.

Since 1938, if a transporter of natural gas owned producing wells, the entire process of production and transportation had been under the Federal Power Commission control. More than 75 percent of Chicago's natural gas supply comes from wells owned by the transporter. Their rates have been and will remain under Federal regulation, but the mayor of that city cried out against the Kerr measure.

It is unfortunate, too, that the President found this pressure so great that he felt for political reasons he must reverse his past requests for such legislation and veto the measure.

Family Doctor Agitation

By Malvina Lindsay

Talk Versus Action

YOU SIT in the waiting room of a city doctor. Occasionally you see him greet a patient in the hall, or usher one into his office. He is a hearty, sympathetic young man. You are deeply touched by the way each patient's face lights up at his warm-hearted interest.

Why this, you tell yourself, is one of the big things going to the doctor means! Meeting someone interested in you—not just your sinus or ulcers—but You! The bedside manner? So what? The world is starving for it.

Yes, the American Medical Association has something in its emphasis on the personal doctor-patient relationship, you reflect. But where are all those fatherly family doctors who are supposedly looking into every fluoroscope? And how many are coming out of medical schools ready to treat the whole "whole" man or woman?

You think of the controversy over Government health insurance, how its opponents charge, its supporters deny, it will lead to impersonal "assembly line medicine." You yourself may think present proposals go too far. But you are puzzled by this family doctor agitation.

So are many of your friends who had not realized the hurried specialist, whom they wait hours to see, and with whom they have a 15-minute consultation interrupted by telephone calls and by nurses with urgent messages, was really old Doc Pellet of their childhood sans beard and Prince Albert.

YOU REMIND yourself of the sensitive, understanding doctors you have met—as well as some others. But it is strange how often you come up against the bafflement, irritation, discouragement of persons dealing with doctors, dentists, oculists who are ignorant of human relations or crude in their practice of them. Some of those persons say, "What am I getting now but assembly line medicine?"

You wonder if the funds being raised by the AMA to fight national health insurance might not better be used in strengthening through education and practice the most effective advantage private medicine ever will have.

True enough, most medical schools now offer courses in psychiatry—some a little half-heartedly—and medical leaders are working for more training in psychosomatic medicine and more psychotherapy generally by physicians. Yet so long has this sort of thing been poohpoohed by medical materialists that many oncoming young doctors don't recognize the need of explaining things to patients, of educating them, encouraging them, understanding their backgrounds, surroundings and emotional problems. You recall a recent survey at the Long Island Medical College which showed that many senior students still held that a doctor's job did not extend beyond the "main problem"—heart, liver or gall bladder.

YOU THINK of the talk you hear from persons who say they are "naturally inclined to be against Government medicine," but who still wonder if they're getting in terms of personal interest the advantages they are supposed to have over those who go to group clinics.

Well, of course, doctors can't be expected to be wet nurses or cheer leaders, and patients can do a lot of long-winded talking about themselves. And doctors are overworked. Still, if there's such a shortage, is everything possible being done to get more into the field?

You think of the eager, curious American mind, how people are reading and hearing more every day of the emotional factors in disease, of autosuggestion, hypnosis, use of the subconscious in healing. Yet often if they mention these things to their doctors they are squelched as nosy ignoramuses.

You think of those made anxious and perplexed by enigmatic statements about their ailments, of those seriously ill who are told it bluntly and brusquely without sympathy and the ray of encouragement so necessary to bolster their fight to live. You think of the increasing number of elderly people who need an emotional lift from their doctors instead of being warned they're "going downhill."

You also think of some modern counterparts of the old family doctor who, without special training but with a basic instinct for human relations or the will to cultivate them, have been fastnesses of faith for many a household storm-tossed by illness. Maybe though a man can't make himself over. Or can he? You wonder if private medicine wouldn't be smart to encourage some of its practitioners to try.

Gremlins' Grab

Dem gremlins in your shop must have gotten the political spring fever which shows up in your April 19 issue in a mighty significant way:

On page 4, under the headline, "Truman Will Ignore Record, GOP Holds," apparently the gremlins want to be on record about both parties fighting to grab control of Congress in the fall elections. According to Webster's Collegiate Dictionary," the word "grab" means "to snatch, seize, to take unscrupulously." And so the gremlins are really shooting the works, and in one place of the above-mentioned feature they chapged GOP Leader Gabrielson's name to "Grabrielson." GREMLINIUS.

McCarthy's Damage

By Marquis Childs

As Perplexed Foreigners See It

TO THE State Department has come a mass of material in recent weeks showing the effect abroad of the quarrel in Washington over communism in Government. While for the most part it is not registered in specific actions, it is nonetheless real.

Childs

Above all, it is reflected in doubts about America's intentions and capacity. These doubts take two special and frequently repeated forms that come out in the inquiries made of our Ambassadors by the Foreign Ministers of other countries and in the editorials of foreign newspapers normally friendly to the United States.

The first concerns our intention to go through with a cold war against an implacable and relentless foe. The Foreign Minister of one of the western European democracies expressed it this way:

"We do not see how you can be so frivolous as to indulge in this kind of controversy if you really mean what you say about resisting Soviet Russia."

The second doubt relates to America's capacity. If even half the implications and charges are true, then this Nation must be seriously weakened. A newspaper in Rio de Janeiro said editorially:

"Tomorrow it would not surprise anybody if President Truman himself is accused of being a Communist . . . Giving the impression abroad that there is the possible existence of a vast Communist cell inside the State Department under the leadership of its very leaders . . . is something that cannot contribute to raise the prestige of those who wish to defend democracy against communism . . ."

FOREIGN observers who know something of the thinness of the charges are puzzled and disturbed by the extraordinary emphasis placed on the quarrel. They wonder if this reflects some deep-seated fear that has eaten into the American will and the American character. If this neurotic fear is an actuality, then again they question America's capacity to resist in a long and grueling contest.

We ourselves are convinced that we have the resolute answers to such doubts. But even with President Truman's "great campaign of truth" we may not altogether quiet these doubts and fears. And they react directly on the will to resist of those whom we seek as allies in Europe and Asia.

The origin of the McCarthy affair indicates the casualness with which the explosion was touched off. According to one of the most influential Republicans in Congress, Senator McCarthy's original speeches on communism resulted from an assignment given by the Republican Senate Campaign Committee in anticipation of the Lincoln's Birthday celebrations across the country.

Speech subjects were parceled out to the various Senators who would speak. McCarthy was assigned communism in the Democratic Administration and, in particular, in the State Department. But some of his colleagues were dismayed when he gave specific figures and later offered to prove his charges about individuals.

CALLED on to offer proof, McCarthy approached many persons for help. One of them was Father John F. Cronin, S.S., of the National Catholic Welfare Conference in Washington. Father Cronin has spent 10 years compiling a file on communism for the Catholic Church.

As he put it later in an interview in the Milwaukee Journal, Father Cronin told McCarthy that he could not help him because his investigation had shown that today there is not one known Communist Party member in the State Department. In the interview he said it was "unfortunate that McCarthy went to such extremes."

"If Senator McCarthy had charged that Communist sympathizers and security risks might be in the State Department, he would have been able to prove it," Father Cronin said.

After Gen. George C. Marshall became Secretary of State in 1947, he put John E. Peurifoy in charge of the department's loyalty program. Peurifoy started a vigorous program to weed out possible Communists, homosexuals and other security risks. He did such a thorough job the department was attacked for "persecuting" innocent men and women for their ideas—Bert Andrews of the New York Herald Tribune got a Pulitzer Prize for showing up the department's "persecution."

The point is not whether the department was overzealous or underzealous but that channels do exist to remove bad security risks and the machinery for this process has been demonstrably effective. To put the charges into politics is to do far greater harm than we in this country can realize.

GRIN AND BEAR IT — By Lichty

"Junior has no interest in life since his girl turned him down...just eats, sleeps, goes to movies and ball games..."

Lattimore's Books Lack Signs of Reds, He Says

more was attacked by the Communists, as he was, or if he took positions that were anathema to the Communist Party line, as he did, he was merely being covered up so as not to disclose his real affiliation. Or, Budenz said, Lattimore might have been given "special dispensations" or exemptions, for the same purpose.

Lattimore said he was sending Budenz a set of his most recent works—Budenz had conceded he had read almost nothing of what Lattimore had written—to demonstrate how far his position was at variance from that of the Communists.

But, the Johns Hopkins professor went on, "I suppose that to him (Budenz) every anti-Communist statement that I made was either for the purpose of covering my true affiliation or was by what he calls special dispensation. . . .

"Now the odd thing is that you would expect that if I were organizing writers to say that the Chinese Communists were agrarian reformers, I would have said so myself somewhere in my 11 books and hundreds of articles.

"But the fact of the matter is that I did not, and when Mr. Budenz was asked to point to a single instance where I said this, he was unable to do so.

"But I suppose that to Mr. Budenz's mind the very fact that I did not say this is proof that I did. I had never before realized how subtle I could be.

"As a matter of fact, although I have not had time to check this completely, I don't believe that there was a single article published in Pacific Affairs (the magazine of the international body of the IPR) in 1936 or 1937 or at any other time when I was editor of that magazine which called the Chinese Communists agrarian reformers or agrarian radicals.

"I didn't think they were merely agrarian reformers, and if anybody had submitted an article for publication in the magazine which described them in this fashion, I would have wanted some evidence that the writer knew what he was talking about.

"I knew that the Communists were making progress by forcing through some agrarian reforms; but I knew that they were Communists; and I wanted to stop the Communists' advance by having the Nationalist Government eliminate the abuses upon which the Communists were capitalizing."

Lattimore pointed out that the one article containing the "agrarian reformer" line that had appeared in an IPR organ—an article to which Budenz referred, as had Senator McCarthy (R., Wisc.) in his initial charges against Lattimore—was in the Far Eastern Survey.

This was a magazine with which Lattimore had no connection, he said. It was put out by the IPR's American Council. Futhermore, Lattimore noted, he had resigned from Pacific Affairs in 1941, two years before the article appeared.

At his press conference in his lawyers' offices, Lattimore called for an investigation of the so-called China lobby.

Defends Marshall

He said that the comment the previous day by McCarthy about Gen. George C. Marshall—that he was "pathetic" as Secretary of State and unfitted for the job—shows that Marshall "is being beaten with the same stick of the the China lobby by its stooge, Senator McCarthy."

Lattimore said that he did not have to defend Marshall but that he wanted to observe that the attack on him "it seems to me is a new low."

"These attacks on General Marshall by the China lobby are not new," Lattimore said, "but heretofore they have been made only by the Kohlbergs."

The reference was to Alfred Kohlberg, New York importer whom Lattimore has charged with being a moving spirit in the China lobby.

"For a United States Senator," Lattimore went on, "whose knowledge is undoubtedly limited to what he has learned from Charlie Chan movies to criticize General Marshall as 'pathetic' is to my mind a complete and utter outrage."

"Clean Out the Cesspool"

He said it was "long past time to clean out the cesspool from which this campaign of character assassination, intimidation and vilification emanates."

The sources of its funds should be investigated, as well as its "mouthpieces," and the inquiry "should include the activities and financing of any persons inside the Government of the United States as well as outside of it, who are part of its operations," he said.

Lattimore has long held that the McCarthy attack against him came from China lobby sources.

He said he would offer any investigation all the information about it that he has, but that this is confined only to his knowledge of the attacks against him and others who have dared to say that the Nationalist government of Chiang Kai-shek is "washed up."

The China lobby, Lattimore implied, is a "conspiracy to destroy the effectiveness of our State Department, to force us to commit our fortunes and our lives to the support of a handful of discredited Chinese officials, to compel us to abandon all reason in a critical area of the world."

In other developments yesterday:

The Senate investigating subcommittee subpenaed three more people to testify in closed session Tuesday.

2 Former FBI Men

Two are former FBI investigators, Lawrence Kerley and John J. Huber. They were called at McCarthy's request. He said they will back his charges against Lattimore.

The third person summoned is Dr. Bella V. Dodd, for four years member of the National Committee of the American Communist Party, but expelled from it last June.

She made an affidavit, released Thursday, that she had never heard Lattimore mentioned by Communist leaders as a Communist or friend of the Party.

Senator Flanders (R., Vt.) said in a Senate speech that "by implication" Budenz's testimony appears to establish "certain links between the Moscow party line" and United States Far Eastern policy. He said Senators were "properly disturbed" by what Budenz said, and that the inquiry into McCarthy's charges has taken "for the moment at least, a more serious turn."

Lattimore told reporters yesterday that he had not yet had time to study a transcript of Budenz's testimony, and would not make detailed comments on it until he had his chance to appear in rebuttal before the Senate Subcommittee.

Main Items Discussed

But in his statement and in answer to questions, Lattimore discussed the main items of Budenz's attack.

He pointed out that Budenz said he had no direct or personal knowledge of Lattimore's Communist Party connection, and was only told so by Jack Stachel, a high party official.

Lattimore said he had never laid eyes on Stachel and that until his name was mentioned Thursday it meant nothing to him. Lattimore continued:

"Those of you who heard Mr. Budenz's testimony yesterday (Thursday) must have been impressed as I was by the fact that I am a Johnny-come-lately in Mr. Budenz's catalog of Communists. It is striking to note that in a book which he has just written, I was not mentioned in Mr. Budenz's manuscript. Apparently only in the last few days or weeks he inserted my name but only for the purpose of identifying another man.

"In an article that he published in Collier's magazine in March, 1949, he also failed to mention me. Mr. Budenz said that he had referred to me in the first draft of this article as someone who had been complimented by Frederick Vanderbilt Field.

Eliminated Reference

"It developed, however, that he eliminated even this reference in a conference with the then associate editor of Collier's. In this conference Mr. Budenz denied that he was charging that I acted as a Communist agent and he volunteered to eliminate any reference which might be taken to indicate that I was even a fellow-traveler.

"Mr. Budenz said that he has not referred to me in his writings as a sinister Communist character because he was afraid of a libel action.

"Of course, he said, that if I brought a libel action that would prove that I was a Communist, because that was the Communist tactic. Apparently if I didn't bring a libel action that also would prove that I was a Communist.

"However, Mr. Budenz did not even attempt to explain why in his dozen or more appearances before the FBI and various committees of Congress where his statements would be privileged he never before this time denounced me or mentioned my name.

"All he said is that he is a poor over-worked informer who doesn't have time to mention everybody. I find it difficult to understand this because it seems to me it would not have taken him more than a minute to say somewhere that he knew Owen Lattimore was a Communist.

"He certainly could have found time to do this between October, 1945, when he says he left the Party, and April, 1950."

Lattimore was questioned by reporters about his associations with Frieda Utley, a former British Communist whom McCarthy has named as one source of his charges against Lattimore.

Lattimore said he met Miss Utley during a brief visit to Moscow in 1936 and that he and his wife "put her up for weeks in their Baltimore home in 1938 and helped her to get lecture engagements.

He did not make clear whether Miss Utley had broken with the Communist Party at that time, but said:

"When I first knew her she was working for the Russians. Immediately after that, she said her husband had been snatched by the OGPU (Russian sceret police) and my wife and I were sorry for her."

In a letter to The Washington Post this week, Miss Utley explained that she broke with the Communists before her husband was seized, and that he probably never would have been arrested and murdered had she not been so outspoken against Communism.

cratic leader McCormack (Mass.) suggested it was time to break diplomatic relations with Russia. The House suspended other business and voted 330 to 0 to award posthumous honors to the 10 lost fliers. The Senate already had approved the resolution.

inson Denounces Stand

(Chairman Vinson (D., Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee declared the Russian armed services had committed an "act of aggression," "a murderous, dastardly, despicable act which has been officially condoned by the Russian government."

(The United States Air Force in Washington reiterated that none of its B-29s was in the Baltic area on April 8 and none is missing. At Wiesbaden, Germany, Germany, United States Air Force base, officers commented that Russia had unwittingly disclosed her airmen are unable to correctly identify American aircraft, particularly to distinguish between the giant B-29 Superfortress and a Privateer, a single-tailed version of the twin-ruddered B-24 Liberator which is about the size of the B-17 Flying Fortress. All are four-engined planes.

(A Pravda editorial on April 13 indicated the Russians regarded the missing Navy plane as the one which their fighters attacked. The Wiesbaden officers said the latest Moscow note indicated Russia now was backing down from this view.)

The Russian note said all the facts stated in its version had been "established by proper verification" and that the American story was "refuted by the exactly established facts."

Note Fixes "Responsibility"

The Soviet government disclaimed information on the American claim that one of its planes was lost. The note added:

"If the American aircraft was indeed lost, then the responsibility for its loss lies entirely with those gentlemen who obliged the American aircraft to penetrate Soviet territory and photograph Soviet defense installations, and so urged it to violate international law and the inviolability of the Soviet frontier."

As to the demand for ironclad instruction to Soviet airmen to prevent a recurrence of such incident, the Russian reply said:

"The proper instructions have existed for a long time and they need no alteration.

"These instructions run: 'In the event of violation by a foreign plane of the frontiers of the USSR and its penetration into Soviet territory, Soviet airmen are instructed to force it to land on Soviet territory and, in the event of resistance, to open fire on it."

Russia said the United States in its note of April 18 was trying to "shirk the responsibility for a gross violation of international law." Vishinsky said Russia "confirms its resolute protest" to the United States over the incident.

Truman Urges Preparedness

came when President Truman turned back the clock and became Captain Truman of the A. E. F. Battery D once again.

He stepped briefly out of role of Commander-in-Chief inspecting the Nation's defense to direct the fire of a six-gun battery of 105-millimeter artillery.

The President gave his orders to the battery as follows:

"Observation Post 1 Fire Mission; Azimuth 2850 from Panel Charley, left 200 (mils) add 400; Machine guns in vicinity of Panel X-ray; fire for effect."

Mr. Truman explained to the crowd that he did not compute the firing problem, but that it had been worked out for him. He said he had not conducted any artillery fire since 1939.

"But if I had more time I could have done it", he added with a grin.

Mr. Truman spoke extemporaneously at a luncheon held for the guests by Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burrus, commandant of the Infantry School.

In predicting that there would be no third World War, the President said he was "an optimist and always has been." He added that he had proved that in 1948.

Sanity Will Come

"And I am just as sure as I stand here," he went on "that eventually sanity is going to come to the world and we are going to be able to develop those things for happiness and welfare of the human family instead of for its destruction."

The President was presented with a plaque of the Infantry School emblem. It contains the motto of the platoon leader, "Follow Me."

Accepting the gift, he said he would put it on the back of his train in his forthcoming trip "to see if I can't get a few Republicans to follow that motto."

Mr. Truman also was presented a history of the Third Division and a brass model of a Patton tank made by Army ordnance. The tank, he said, will be placed on his desk.

"I am working and hoping that the time will come when all tanks will be used, as this one will be, for peacetime purposes," said the President.

Some 4500 troops of the Third Division put on a review for the President swinging by to the tune of "On Wisconsin." Afterwards, Mr. Truman held a "caucus" of his military advisers and announced—to the disappointment of the infantrymen present—that the Seventy-eighth Engineer Battalion had been the best drilled.

Top officials in the presidential party include: Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson, Treasury Secretary John W. Snyder, Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan, Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin, Army Secretary Frank Pace, jr., Navy Secretary Francis Matthews, Air Force Secretary W. Stuart Symington, Canadian Defense Minister Brooke Claxton and Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.), also Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff; Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, Chief of Naval Operations; Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, USAF Chief of Staff; Gen. Clifton B. Cates, Marine Corps Commandant; Gen. Mark Clark, Army Field Forces commander; Assistant Defense Secretary W. S. McNeil, and AEC Chairman tSumner Pike.

The demonstration was a regular fire problem put on for infantry school classes. Some 80 business leaders of the Defense Department's orientation conference also were present. The whole party moves on to Elgin AF Base, Fla., for an air force demonstration Saturday.

Red Accused in Plane Case

The former prime minister of Poland last night charged the present Russian military commander in Poland with at least partial blame in shooting down an American plane in the Baltic.

Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, who escaped the country and fled to America when the Russians took over Poland, pointed an accusing finger at Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky in a talk at Georgetown University.

Mikolajczyk first reviewed the history of Soviet aggression in Iron Curtain nations since the war. Then, in a question-and-answer period, he said:

"Rokossovsky is one of the few marshals of Soviet Russia still in favor with Stalin and the Kremlin."

He first became military commander of Poland, the former president of the Peasant recalled. Then, "under the pretext of being minister of defense," Rokossovsky took control of the Soviet government of Poland.

In that capacity, he is "partly responsible for the shooting down of the American airplane," now the topic of international tension between America and Russia.

Mikolajczyk said the Russians have recently been conducting military "exercises" on the Baltic coast. Many of the residents of that area "have been moved inland" to give the invaders a free hand, he declared.

The government has been completely taken over by Rokossovsky, with "even the most devoted Communists in Poland being replaced by Soviet citizens or by Communists with long experience in Soviet Russia," he added.

The nations "under Communist oppression," Mikolajczyk continued, "must know that the democratic world, having ended their policy of appeasement, does not intend under any conditions to agree to the division of the world into two parts."

Clergymen Ask Aid for Cancer Work

Support for the work of the American Cancer Society was voiced yesterday by three Greater Washington religious leaders.

Clergymen have been asked to tell their congregations that Sunday is "Cancer Sunday," a part of the society's "Cancer Control Month."

Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld, spiritual leader of the Washington Hebrew Congregation, in supporting the society's work, pointed out that finding a cure for cancer is an urgent social and religious obligation.

The Right Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal Bishop of Washington and president of the Washington Federation of Churches, said the society is "rendering a much needed service" in the effort to seek a cure for cancer.

The first appeal in combating cancer must be for help from God, the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Washington, said.

"We must also call upon ourselves to do our part and to pray that men will use the findings of science for man's cure and not his curse," he said.

Lutherans Set for College Funds Drive

United Lutheran churches this week will turn their attention to the work of denominational colleges and seminaries.

In a concerted 6-day drive which begins Sunday, they will seek to raise $6,000,000 for the 23 United Lutheran Church of America colleges and seminaries in the United States and Canada.

Advance campaigns have already raised $1,207,457 for the "Christian Higher Education Year" drive.

In the past few weeks many Greater Washington ULCA churches have heard educational leaders speak on the work of the institutions. Sunday, many ministers will preach on Christian higher education.

At Luther Place Memorial Church, Thomas Circle nw., the guest preacher at 9 and 11 a. m. will be the Rev. Dr. Gould Wickey, executive secretary of the Board of Higher Education of the ULCA. He will speak on "Christian Higher Education Makes a Difference."

At 8 p. m. Sunday a film "The Difference", which depicts life in a Christian college, will be shown.

The Rev. Arnold F. Keller, jr., will speak on "Toward a Christian Higher Education" at the matin service at 8:30 a. m. at the Lutheran Church of the Reformation, 212 East Capitol st.

Methodist Bishops Disclaim Federation

Cleveland, April 21 (AP).—The Methodist Church's Council of Bishops today answered a magazine article titled "Methodism's Pink Fringe" by applauding a proposal to take "Methodist" from the name of the Methodist Federation for Social Action.

"It is a voluntary and independent organization," said the Council. "It is not responsible to the church. It does not speak for the church, and over it neither the General Conference nor the Council of Bishops has jurisdiction."

The article, written by Stanley High in Reader's Digest, said the federation has opposed the American capitalist system and has shown sympathy for some Communist theories.

In New York, the Rev. Jack McMichael, executive secretary of the federation, called the article a "slanted and unfair piece of propaganda" that "is wholly unfounded."

Concerning the bishops' statement the federation does not officially represent the church, the Rev. Mr. McMichael said this is true of the federation, as well as many other Methodist organizations, including the Bishops' council.

The only body authorized to speak officially for the church, he said, is the General Methodist Conference.

The Rev. Mr. McMichael said the article quoted material "out of context" and omitted material showing the group strongly opposes communism.

The council concluded its meeting today.

The quadriennial assembly of the Methodist Woman's Society of Christian Service, also concluding its meeting, approved a series of "recommendations for action," which included one of the "sin" of racial segregation in the church.

fruit and flower table decorations in the banquet room.

"I told you I wanted all the money you had before your left," she said, adding, "I hope you have enough for fare home."

The pledging session continued almost an hour.

Mrs. Patton received a rising ovation as she was presented by Mrs. O'Byrne.

The members heard Frank Waldrop, executive editor of the Washington Times-Herald, make an address opposing world government.

Mrs. Patton said that she "made no committments" in her campaign for president-general.

At her installation at Constitution Hall yesterday morning Mrs. Patton expressed "a deep sense of humility and appreciation of the confidence and faith" placed in her and her cabinet.

She stressed the importance of the National Defense Committee which in a community "can become the nucleus of information concerning the various phases of our national security."

Mrs. Edwin Stanton Lammers, the defeated candidate for president-general, pledged her support, and the support of her followers to Mrs. Patton "for the good of the DAR organization."

Following acceptance of the president-general's ribbon from Mrs. Roscoe C. O'Byrne, president-general for the past three years, Mrs. Patton said:

"As my first official duty as president-general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, I hereby declare the forty-ninth Continental Congress adjourned."

Mrs. O'Byrne quickly whispered it was the fifty-ninth Continental Congress.

Mrs. Patton, laughing along with the audience, said, "Well, there's mistake number one."

Mrs. Grace Brosseau, honorary president-general, welcomed Mrs. O'Byrne into the honorary presidents-general club. She said, in placing the ribbon over Mrs. O'Byrne's shoulder, that "she can take her place at the foot of the line and act as a page for the other honorary presidents-general."

Members of Mrs. Patton's cabinet, installed yesterday, are:

Mrs. Loren Edgar Rex, Wichita, Kans., first vice president-general.

Mrs. Leland Hartley Barker, Wisconsin Rapids, Wis., chaplain general.

Mrs. Warren Shattuck Currier, Newburyport, Mass., recording secretary-general.

Mrs. George D. Schermerhorn, Reading, Mich., corresponding secretary-general.

Mrs. David Morgan Wright, Bartow, Fla., organizing secretary-general.

Mrs. John Morrison Kerr, Washington, D. C. treasurer-general.

Mrs. Kenneth Troy Trewhella, East Hartford, Conn., registrar-general.

Mrs. Hugh L. Russell, Ashland, Ky., historian-general.

Mrs. Roland M. James, Tucson, Ariz., librarian-general.

Mrs. George Andrew Kuhner, Mount Vernon, N. Y., curator-general.

Mrs. Charles Haskell Danforth, Stanford University, Calif., reporter-general.

Three-Year Terms

Taking office as vice-presidents-general for three-year terms are:

Mrs. David W. Anderson, Manchester, N. H.; Mrs. Edward Cage Brewer, Clarksdale, Miss.; Mrs. Virgil Browne, Edmond, Okla.; Mrs. Joseph E. Gelder, Reno, Nev.; Mrs. Raymond C. Goodfellow, South Orange, N. J.; Dr. Winona Stevens Jones, Lexington, Ky.; Mrs. Everett L. Repass, Salem, Va.

In the final business session the Daughters passed a resolution commending the District Sesquicentennial celebration, and urged its support by the society.

They expressed thanks to President Truman "for his message and confidence," to Mrs. O'Byrne for her three years leadership, and to the press "for its recognition and interest."

The DAR voiced its approval of the Mundt bill requiring registration of Communists. The Daughters voted to urge the Congress of the United States "to advocate a balanced budget for fiscal year 1951, to vote for a reduction in the appropriation bill now pending and to exert positive action for the reduction in the Federal debt."

In the comics and youth radio field, the Daughters voted to commend directors and publishers "who reject the use of pernicious influences." The resolution urged the members to "demonstrate their deep concern for the welfare of today's youth by appeal and protest of injurious comics and radio crime stories."

A bill, preserving Old Stone House, 3051 M st. nw., was urged.

The society went on record as favoring election of Susan B. Anthony, a life member of the DAR, to the Hall of Fame.

240 D. C. Residents Sail Today On Holy Year Trip to Rome

By Richard Morris
Post Reporter

Filled with ardor, more than 200 Catholics in the archdiocese of Washington left Union Station yesterday on a pilgrimage of peace and prayer to the Vatican City.

They were besieged by friends and relatives with farewell messages, bowers and requests for remembrances in their prayers.

There will be 240 from this area boarding the S. S. DeGrasse at New York today, many having left early to spend a day of sightseeing.

Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle will be the senior representative of the archdiocese when the pilgrims hold an audience with Pope Pius XII early next month.

It was that prospect that most of the group awaited most eagerly in their journey to Rome for the Holy Year.

Mrs. William A. Miller, 911 Monroe st. nw., a member of Sacred Heart parish, had a particular interest in taking her first trip abroad.

Her father, the late Fred J. Braendle, was a member of the famous Swiss guard at the Vatican City. A native of Switzerland, he became an American citizen before his death in 1934.

Sentiment of All

When she said "I am looking forward to this opportunity of seeing the Pope and the Vatican," Mrs. Miller spoke the sentiment of all her fellow travelers who boarded a special train at 5 p.m.

With her were two sisters, Miss Jane Herrity, a member of the District bar and executive assistant at the Federal Trade Commission, and Miss Margaret Herrity, secretary to the general counsel of FTC.

Mrs. Virginia Maloney, 2126 Connecticut ave. nw., expected to find considerable spiritual comfort in her visit to the Vatican. Her husband, Thomas J. Maloney, died this week and was buried Thursday.

Sevens Pastors in Group

Waving to her from the platform were her daughter, Mrs. Virginia Odor, 10212 Lorain ave., Silver Spring, and her 6-year-old son, David, almost hidden from view by a genuine cowboy hat.

The pilgrimage is under the direction of the Very Rev. John S. Spence, director of education for the archdiocese of Washington. Seven Washington area pastors are among many priests in the group.

Highlights of their visit to the Vatican will be tours of the basilicas of St. Peter, St. John Lateran, Santa Maria Maggiore and St. Paul Outside-the-Walls. Many of the laity will remain abroad for a tour of Europe. Archbishop O'Boyle and his party will return to Washington May 10.

Probe Sought Of Curtailed Postal Service

A resolution calling for a broad investigation of the order cutting postal service throughout the Nation was introduced in the House yesterday.

A seven-member special committee would be set up to inquire at once "whether such drastic curtailment of service is justified as an economy measure."

The Postoffice Department announced curtailments Tuesday. Included were a reduction in residential service to one delivery a day and cuts in nearly all other classes of service.

Many postal workers would be laid off under the program, which is to take effect in the next few weeks.

The department said it acted at the suggestion of the House Appropriations Committee on ways to decrease the 500 million dollar postal deficit.

Representative Walsh (D., Ind.), who introduced the resolution, said he will press for immediate action.

If the committee is set up, he said he expected it would ask the Postoffice Department to suspend the cuts until the congressional probe is completed.

Walsh told a reporter he had been asked by the AFL National Letter Carriers Association to put in the resolution.

The Congressman said he and his colleagues already are beginning to receive many protests about the proposed reduction in service.

World Bank Trims Dutch Loan as Aid Need Lessens

The International Bank for Reconstruction and Development announced yesterday that it had agreed to cancel $6.2 million of the $15 million loan to the Finance Corporation for National Reconstruction (Herstelbank) of the Netherlands.

The loan to the Herstelbank was granted on July 26, 1949. The purpose of the loan was to finance imports of equipment for reconstruction or modernization of 24 manufacturing companies.

Since the signing of the loan agreement and the devaluation of the Dutch guilder, trade relations with Western Germany and Belgium have developed more favorably than expected and it became possible to finance imports of equipment from the two countries without assistance from the bank. The devaluation of the Netherlands guilder, moreover, made it too expensive to carry out some of the planned projects.

In view of these developments the Herstelbank requested the International Bank under the terms of the loan agreement to cancel a part of the loan.

Bear, world traveler; Miss Martha Biehle, American representative, Intergovernmental Committee for Refugees, and Dr. Howard Tillman Kuist, professor at the Princeton (N. J.) Theological Seminary.

Chinese Church Given Donation of $1000

A check for $1000 was presented to the Chinese Community Church, 1011 L st. nw., last night by Calvary Baptist Church.

Calvary Church also presented $1000 to the church several years ago. The Chinese church is carrying on a long-term drive to raise funds for a new church building to meet its needs.

Protestant Official To Talk on Travels

The Rev. Milton T. Stauffer will speak on his recent tour of the Orient and the Near East at 8 p. m. Tuesday at Dunham Hall, Lewinsville, Va., Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Stauffer is general secretary of the John Milton Society of New York, interdenominational Protestant agency for aid to the blind.

Call-Backs Slow Census' Speedy Tempo

The current census is moving faster than the 1940 one, but call-backs for "nobody homes" are delaying the windup.

Census Director Roy V. Peel yesterday said the Nation is more than 75 percent counted with 115 million on record. In Washington, about 71 percent or 620,000 have been tallied and the Washington Metropolitan area about 72 percent.

Yesterday local census officials decided to cut down on call-backs by instructing enumerators to leave census forms for persons who could not be contacted. These are requested to complete and mail them in the franked envelopes provided, Albert E Craig, jr., area supervisor, announced.

Census workers are concentrating on mopping up uncounted sections by the end of the month—official deadline—but national officials said the count will continue until finished.

Washington has an average of one in every five homes requiring a callback, Craig said, mainly because of the large number of working couples. Cards have been left asking the residents to contact the enumerator, but in many instances these have been ignored, Craig said.

Pepco Files New Issues With PUC

By S. Oliver Goodman

Potomac Electric Power Co. yesterday asked Public Utilities Commission approval of plans to issue 30 million dollars in new first mortgage bonds and 710,700 additional shares of common stock.

Pepco also filed the new financing plans with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Of the proceeds, $31,550,000 will be used to redeem at a lower cost 20 million dollars of presently outstanding 3¼ percent bonds due in 1966 and to pay off 11 million dollars in bank loans.

The balance, expected to approximate 10 million dollars would be used for 1950 construction funds.

In its PUC application, Pepco asked waiver of competitive bidding on the new stock issue. The bond issue will be submitted for such bidding. Last year, the PUC allowed a similar request.

Under the plans, present Pepco shareholders will be given rights to subscribe to the new shares on a basis of one new share for each five held. Price per share will be fixed later. Any new shares not taken up will be sold to a group of

On the bond issue, to mature in

On thebond issue, to mature in 1985, the interest rate and public offering price will be dependent on the bidding. At least six underwriting groups, it is understood, are being formed to bid.

The PUC set a formal public hearing on Pepco's financial application to be held at 10 a. m. May 1.

N. Y. Reports Augur A Big Circus Year

By Richard L. Coe

CIRCUS DAYS are almost here. Monday brings the ninth annual Shrine Circus to Uline's for a week's stay, and May 18 through 21 is now set for the yearly visit of Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey.

Next week's show, proceeds going to the Shrine's charity funds, is a three-ring, 38-act event under the Hamid-Morton banner. This is the town's biggest indoor circus event and, with hotels and rooming houses jammed, there's every reason to think the Shrine will have a big week.

That's what's been going on in New York, where RB-B&B are set up in Madison Square Garden, which can seat 14,800 each performance. Last Saturday that new seating capacity (by adding 600 seats in front of the promenade chairs) pushed the single day's take—two performances—up to $75,000.

That's in a single day, kid: $75,000.

So you see, the old appeal is still there. 'Course it costs $23,000 a day to run the RB-B&B outfit and rental of the Garden ain't hay, either. In fact, it's such heavy hay the North family is hoping that land occupied by carbarns, now being torn down, may yet mean Gothamites can get their circus under a tent. Look for a razzle-dazzle battle for the Norths to get easier terms on the Garden in the future.

Because money is a problem even to the Norths, this year's bookings are being restudied and, in some cases, shifted. This accounts for Washington's new dates; the show was to have run here May 16 through 20, but by playing in Baltimore before Washington and adding a Sunday here, the take is likely to be bigger.

As to that gigantic claim of $4,500,000 against RB-B&B for the disastrous Hartford fire of a few years ago, all but $500,000 is now paid off, with hopes of clearing that up this season.

As variety cogently notes: "Barnum was Right."

(No seat sale dates yet for the Washington run, but as usual, Peoples Drug Stores will be handling tickets).

THE CIRCUS, too, will be the theme of the revived Brotherhood of the Washington Hebrew Congregation Father and Son Banquet a week from tomorrow night at the Mayflower . . . E. Lawrence Phillips of the Johnny J. Jones expositions is again presenting the circus aspects of that evening and has arranged sideshows to the banquet which are as good a reason for arriving at a dinner early as Panjandrum Sidney can imagine . . . And, adds Sidney, if you haven't got a son, bring your grandson.

THE NEW PLAZA THEATER'S opening night, Tuesday, May 2, will be a Kiwanis Club benefit for the organization's work for crippled children . . . Plaza Owner Sam Roth has donated the theater's opening night to the cause, with tickets at 10 smacks a head . . . Your family's Kiwanian can put you in touch with the seat seller . . . William F. Nelson is chairman of the committee

ADD COMMITTEES: Three Washington showmen head the key committees of the approaching Independence drive for United States Savings Bonds: A. Julian Brylawski, as theater chairman; Frnak La Falce, publicity chairman, and Joseph Brecheen, exchange chairman . . . Wonder if that Senator who complains about Hollywood ever thought how much time of the show people is devoted to patriotic and charitable ventures?

"STAGE FRIGHT," which managed to top Bing Crosby's recent week at the Warner, moves over to the Metropolitan this morning, where Director Alfred Hitchcock's puzzling puts Marlene Dietrich in the guise of an evil, evil woman for quite a spell . . . The Warner opens "Woman of Distinction," with Rosalind Russell and Ray Milland, today.

THE GAYETY winds up three weeks of "A Streetcar Named Desire" tonight . . . The first week of this was Holy Week, and while attendance naturally suffered, it wasn't bad, for that traditionally is the poorest week of the theater year. The second week bgan selling out Wednesday and the place has been packed ever since . . . Now what was it that Irene Selznick was telling the ANTA board in New York? . . . Something about "Washingtonians have lost the theatergoing habit and there's not much point in bothering about a theater for the city." . . . Irene's now in London, but I hope she enjoys eating her words, for her people now regret they didn't book for more than three weeks.

CONNIE B. GAY tonight begins his Hillbilly Weekend plot . . . This runs from 9 tonight till one ayem and resumes again tomorrow afternoon from 3 till 6 at the National Guard Armory . . . Grandpa Jones will be joined by Hank Snow for the Sunday performance and on Saturday night a new 12-piece Western Swing Band will make its local bow.

TODAY: "The Wizard of Oz," danced by the Washington School of the Ballet pupils of Lisa Gardiner and Mary Day, get its final performance this afternoon at 2:30 at the Roosevelt High auditorium . . . Rose Robinson Cowen's pupils play "Martina and Perez" at 4:30 at 3815 Livingston st. . . . The Thespian Study Club of Washington presents a theater conference from 2 till 5:30 at Kappa House, 1708 S st. nw. . . . Carolyn Hill Stewart plays her one-woman dramatic show and characterizations at Armstrong High tonight at 8:30. Miss Stewart's roles always have caught the eyes of the New York critics; her offering tonight will be sponsored by Beta Sigma of Delta Theta Sigma Theta and the Armstrong P-TA.

Bookbinders' Strike Goes on Despite Talks

Federal mediation efforts yesterday failed to obtain a settlement in the week-long strike of 180 AFL bookbinders against 20 local print shops and bingeries. Another conciliation session has been set for Monday.

The bookbinders are seeking a reduction in hours, from 40 to 37½ a week, but with no loss in take-home pay.

Yesterday, the District CIO Industrial Union Council, representing 16 affiliated locals of CIO international unions, pledged its support to help the AFL strikers.

The IUC charged that the strike never would have taken place, and that the companies would have met the bookbinders' demand, had it not been for the Taft-Hartley Act, which forbids "so-called secondary boycotts" of the struck plants by other trade unionists.

Yanks Rout Nats on Four Home Runs, 14-7

Kiner Hits First Homer, Westlake Has 2 in 7-5 Win

Pittsburgh, April 21 (AP).—Ralph Kiner belted his first 1950 home run today to help pound the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 7-5 victory over the Cincinnati Reds at Forbes Field.

But Buc Outfielder Wally Westlake stole the show before 32,685 frost-nipped fans by personally driving in six tallies with a pair of four-baggers and a single.

The Reds' Bobby Usher and Danny Litwhiler joined the homer parade too—each rapping a 400-drive over the center field wall.

Westlake hit his first in the second frame with the bags deserted, Khen repeated in the fifth, driving in Kiner and Nanny Fernandez. He also hit a two-run single in the third.

Rush Bests Brecheen, Cubs Beat Cards, 2-0

Chicago, April 21 (AP).—Bob Rush, hurling his way out of repeated jams in the early innings, outdueled Harry (The Cat) Brecheen to lead the Chicago Cubs to a 2-0 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals in their home opener before 22,137 today.

Brecheen, who had previously won 27 out of 34 decisions from the Cubs, found his charm had run out. He allowed only three hits. But two were triples by Hal Jeffcoat and Wayne Terwilliger that led to runs. Jeffcoat tallied while Brecheen was throwing out Hank Sauer in the fourth, and Preston Ward's long fly scored Terwilliger in the sixth.

WHICH WAY DID IT GO?—Nat second sacker Al Kozar (42) has a tough time finding the ball after muffing Gene Woodling's grounder in the first inning of yesterday's game with the New York Yankees in Yankee Stadium. The error allowed Yankee Shortstop Phil Rizzutto (10) to go safely into second. In the background is Washington's Sam Dente. Umpire is Bill McKinley

Maryland's Don Soderberg, who hurled two-hit ball for seven innings and struck out 10, coasted to a 14-4 victory over Western Maryland yesterday at College Park.

Soderberg gave up all the runs in the eighth but it didn't matter much at the point with his teammates pounding Russ Shivers, who went all the way, for 16 hits.

Georgetown Hits 5 Homers Against Penn

Special Dispatch to The Post

Philadelphia, April 21.—Blasting five home runs, Georgetown walloped Pennsylvania, 20-4, here today in a game called at the end of eight innings, allegedly for darkness.

George Hughes and Frank Alagia each bashed two haomers, and Dick Falvey contributed a grandslam roundtripper. Hughes and Alagia also batted in four runs spiece.

The Hoyas got even with a vengeance for a 4-3 setback in Washington at the hands of Penn. With the hitters' holiday, Coach Joe Judge divided the pitching burden among Frank Mattingly, Bob McNabb and Hugh Murphy.

Ralph Jiorrle and George Parker took the mound lumps for Penn.

Harris 'Tempted'

Yanks Seeking Scarborough Again and Offer Five for One

New York, N. Y., April 21.—The Yankees are renewing their attempts to wangle Pitcher Ray Scarborough from the Nats and now are putting it on a five-for-one basis.

Casey Stengel made the offer to Bucky Harris in a managerial huddle at Toots Shor's late last night, but got an evasive answer.

Stengel declared the Yankees were willing to part with Third Baseman Bill Johnson, Second Baseman George Stirnweiss, Outfielders Johnny Lindell and Dick Wakefield, and a second-flight catcher for Scarborough.

"We're not interested right now," said Harris. Later he admitted to newsmen he was "tempted."

Harris attempted to laugh Stengel off with the inquiry, "Are you sure you have authority to make a deal for the Yankees?"

He was reminding the Yanks' manager that General Manager George Weiss had vetoed an offer Stengel made for Scarborough last winter after Harris agreed to a trade.

Late today, a Yankee source reported that Stengel had raised his offer to six-for-one, with a willingness to include Pitcher Don Johnson in the swap.

The wholesale offer of talent by the Yankees is a manifestation of mild panic over their own pitching.

Harris has not yet communicated the Yanks' offer to Clark Griffith, indicating he is in no haste to make the deal.

With the Red Sox also interested in Scarborough and shuddering at the prospect of blowing the pennant because of weak pitching, the Nats are obviously playing the two clubs off against each other in an attempt to make the best deal.

Supposedly, the Nats are prepared to wait until the June 15 trading deadline when both the Red Sox and Yanks may be even more desperate for such as Scarborough. That's when they think they can make the most advantageous swap.—POVICH.

Campanella's Grand Slam Winning Blow

Brooklyn, April 21 (AP).—Roy Campanella's grand slam home run in the third paced a 14-hit Brooklyn attack as the National League champions opened their home season today with an 8-1 trouncing of the forlorn New York Giants.

It was the second four-run lick off Giant pitching in as many games, Sid Gordon of the Boston Braves having inflicted a similar indignity on Leo Durocher's victoryless clan only two days ago at the Polo Grounds.

Dodger rookie Bob Morgan collected three singles.

Braves, Phils End Up 2-2 As Rain Halts Game

Boston, April 21 (AP).—An eighth inning thunderstorm broke off the Boston Braves' home opener in a 2-2 tie with the Phillies today before a chilled 7308 crowd.

The downpour prevented the Tribesmen from going to bat in their side of the eighth. When the tarpaulins were removed after a 30-minute delay, the water-covered field was ruled "unplayable."

Spencer Upsets Stranahan To Gain North-South Finals

Pinehurst, N. C., April 21 (AP).—Wynsol K. Spencer, 30-year-old Newport News, Va., insurance man, upset defending champion Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, 2 and 1, today to gain the finals of the North and South Amateur Golf championship.

His opponent in tomorrow's finals will be William C. Campbell, Huntington, W. Va., who eliminated J. Wolcott Brown, Manasquan, N. J., veteran 6 and 5 in other 36-hole semifinal.

Spencer gained a two up morning lead over Stranahan and never fell behind, although Stranahan cut the margin to one hole going to the seventeenth tee. On the final hole Spencer rammed home a 12-foot putt for a par three to win the hole and end the match.

The 30-year-old Spencer, 1948 Virginia champion, waged a tight duel with Stranahan in which he was never ahead until he won the short seventeenth with a par three and then added the eighteenth by canning a 35-foot putt for a birdie three.

Choo Choo's Services Come High

Justice, Redskins Talk Today; Richmond After Him, Too

Charlie Justice, who grossed $18,000 last month from the sale of T-shirts bearing his fabulous name, talks money with the Washington Redskins today.

The success of the North Carolina All-American halfback as a salesman isn't the only competition facing the Redskins in their efforts to add Choo-Choo's name to their roster, however.

They also have rivals in the Richmond Rebels, of the minor league American Football Association, whose owner and coach arrived in town shortly after Justice did last night.

Harry Seibold, owner, and Keith Molesworth, coach of the Virginians, said they hadn't talked to Justice for a week, but felt "we have as good a chance of signing him as the Redskins."

Justice, it is understood, has been offered a hefty—hefty even for the major National Football League—sum to play 15 games, including exhibitions for the Richmonders.

One source placed the amount as high as $15,000, or $1000 a game. Until last night, when General Manager Richard McCann and Coach Herman Ball huddled with him, the Redskins had not made Choo-Choo an offer.

Also confronting the Redskins is the fact that Justice has a lifetime job, starting at $8500 a year, with the North Carolina Medical Foundation as a good-will ambassador waiting for him upon his graduation in June.

Stephens Grand Slams

'Mack' Day Spoiled, Bosox Sock A's, 8-2

Philadelphia, April 21 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox spoiled Connie Mack's fiftieth home opening as manager of the Philadelphia Athletics by whipping the A's, 8 to 2, behind seven-hit pitching of Lefty Maurice McDermott and the big bats of Vern Stephens and Al (Zeke) Zarilla.

Stephens hit a home run with the bases loaded in the ninth and Zarilla contributed three hits to Boston's 10-hit total off Lou Brissie and Harry Byrd.

Brissie, the left-handed starter who has had unusually good luck against the Red Sox, was touched for eight hits and four runs in the eight innings he worked.

The first A's run was a gift from McDermott who balked, permitting Bob Dillinger to stroll home from third base in the second inning.

The victory for the Sox, while spoiling "Connie Mack Day" for the A's, was a fitting present to Manager Joe McCarthy, who celebrated his sixty-third birthday.

An estimated 10,000 fans turned out on a cloudy, cold afternoon to celebrate "Connie Mack Day." Best wishes for success poured in on the Grand Old Man of Baseball from President Truman, Vice President Barkley, Governors from States all over the United States and Just Plain "Joe," the baseball fan.

The impressive ceremonies started in Mayor Bernard Samuel's office with an official proclamation of Connie Mack Day. A motorcade left City Hall and proceeded to Shibe Park with the Athletics' owner and manager sitting in an open touring car. The cold wind appeared to have little effect on him.

At the ball park, Edwin J. Pollock, sports editor of the Philadelphia Bulletin, presented Mack with several truck loads of scrolls signed by baseball fans the world over.

A big white sign accompanying the scrolls read:

"This tribute from more than one million fans to Connie Mack whose leadership, integrity, sportsmanship and spirit through 50 years as manager of the Philadelphia Athletics has inspired for generations."

Groth, Wertz Lead Tigers To 4-1 Win

Detroit, April 20 (AP).—The unbeaten Detroit Tigers cashed in by a pair of homers today as they opened their home season by beating the Chicago White Sox, 4-1, before a chilled crowd of 44,642 fans.

The White Sox grabbed a one-run lead in the fourth inning and hung on until Outfielder Johnny Groth tied the game at 1-all in the seventh with a 360-foot homer in the left centerfield bleachers.

The Tigers broke the game wide open in the bottom of the eighth as Vic Wertz tagged Pitcher Mickey Haefner for a three-run homer into the right field stands.

Europeans Score Over D. C. Boxers

The best amateur fighters of all Europe ganged up on Washington's Golden Gloves champions and whipped them in five out of eight matches last night before 2500 at Uline Arena.

Giavanni de Segni, only member of an Italian family of four to survive four years of Nazi imprisonment at infamous Dachau, won the sweetest victory for the visitors when he outpointed Eldridge Thompson, the National A. A. U. lightheavyweight champ.

Washington drew its main consolation by scoring the only two technical knockouts. National A. A. U. Heavyweight Champ Norvel Lee stung Finn Teemu Kuusela with his first straight left, followed with two quick rights, and Kuusela was on the canvas after only 15 seconds. He got up to survive the round, but his seconds wouldn't let him come out for the second.

Griffs' Five Pitchers Are Slammed for 18 Safeties

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

New York, April 21.—The Nats produced some relief pitching that smacked of the relief rolls and drew a large-sized 14-7 defeat from the Yankees in the late innings today.

After unfurling before 27,877 opening-day fans the pennant they won last season, the Yankees blew a 7-2 lead at one point and were looking very unchampionship-like. And then they whacked Mickey Harris and Jim Pearce for seven more runs in the seventh and eighth innings.

Joe Di Maggio belted the decisive blow, a two-run homer off Harris in the seventh after the Nats stirred up five runs off Tommy Byrne earlier in the inning to tie the score in a quite commendable display.

Joe Haynes, Lloyd Hittle, Harris, Jim Pearce and Conrado Marrero succeeded in limiting the Yankees to 18 hits, and allowed only four home runs.

Yogi Berra and Tommy Henrich also joined Di Maggio in the two-run home run group, and Pitcher Byrne also put one in the seats.

Salvaggio Rides Two Winners

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Havre de Grace, Md., April 21.—Mrs. Ada L. Rice, who has a big investment in thoroughbred horseflesh, got some of her money back today. Three-year-old fillies competed in the Matilda, the day's feature, and Mrs. Rice's Coming Event was up in the very last stride to take a nose decision.

John E. Hughes' Afterwards, a long shot, was second with Brookmeade Stable's Pilayya third and King Ranch's Include fourth in a field of eight.

Coming Event, paying $9.60 to scattered backers, was going a distance for the first time and was clocked in 1:43 4/5 over a fast track and under cloudy skies.

Salvaggio Wins Two

Apprentice John Salvaggio a Brooklyn boy who rode the first winner of his saddle career aboard Bows and Knots early in the meeting, put up a strong finish on the daughter of Pharamond 2d, and Snowflake.

Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords' Fais Do Do, the favorite, and Mrs. H. A. Campbell's Wiley Fox battled for pacemaking honors with both fading as the result of their early usage. Afterwards, always within striking distance took command approaching the stretch.

Coming Event rallied in the straightaway and gradually wore down Afterwards, the chestnut filly barely failing to last under the handling of Apprentice John Dickey. Pilayya and Include closed with bold rushes.

$83 Daily Double

The victory was the second of the day for young Salvaggio.

In the third race he was aboard W. P. Taylor's Carter Girl and brought the 4-year-old miss along in time to defeat H. S. Horkseimer's A Lady and Mrs. Samuel Smith's Best Trick. Carter Girl paid $22.80 and registered time of 1:13 2/5 for the six furlongs.

The daily double on the 5-and-1 combination paid $83. F. Landsburgh's Strutaway won the first race at $13.40 while Saggy Farms' Stan Swing accounted for the second at $11.60. Richard Stark and Maurice Peters were the winning riders.

Mrs. Herrmann's 86 Wins in Blind Bogey

Mrs. E. E. Herrmann's 100-14—86 won yesterday's Army-Navy Country Club women's blind bogey tournament. Four women, Mrs. George MacClain, Mrs. G. W. Murphy, Mrs. Frank Browning and Mrs. William T. Reed, tied for second place.

Mrs. William Ely was voted first place in the costume half of the tournament. She wore a golf dress which belonged to her mother in 1890.

Gould, Braddock's Manager, Dies at 53 of Leukemia

New York, April 21 (AP). — Joe Gould, who managed Heavyweight Champion Jimmy Braddock, died today after a lingering illness. He was 53.

The Gould-Braddock combination was one of the closest in the history of boxing. Until Braddock reached the top, the two operated without a contract, a simple handshake binding their agreements.

Before Braddock became champion, the two worked as longshoremen after the Irishman's first venture into boxing failed to bring impressive results.

Gould had been ill for almost a year of leukemia, which was given as the cause of death.

Jim Ferrier Team Wins In Specialists

Virginia Beach, Va., April 21 (AP). One of the biggest blowups in golf history today gave Australian-born Jim Ferrier's quartet of top-ranking professional stars the $500 team match championship in the third annual Cavalier Specialists Golf Tournament.

Ferrier's team, which included his rival from down under, Norman Von Nida of Sydney; Ed Furgol of Royal Oak, Mich., and Jim Turnesa of Briarcliff, N. Y., toured the 6065-yard Cavalier Yacht and Country Club layout with a best ball score of 67, 2 under par.

Alexander Lands in Rough

At the eleventh hole the combination captained by Chandler Harper of Portsmouth, Va., was leading its nearest rival foursome by four strokes. Harper had Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., doing his driving. Handling the long and medium irons was Skip Alexander of Lexington, N. C. Lanky Dave Douglas of Wilmington, Del., was the team's trouble shooter.

The Demaret-Alexander-Douglas-Harper team lost all of its advantage on the next two holes. Alexander's second drive on the par four No. 12 missed the green and landed in the rough to the right. Troubleman Douglas used a four iron and tried to roll the ball up the hill, but it trickled back down. Next time, Douglas did the job with a wedge. Harper two-putted and the team took a two over par six in the hole.

Fazio's Shot Goes in Bay

After Demaret drove his tee shot into the trees to the left on No. 13, Douglas fired over the green and into a trap. Douglas came out on his second try, sending the ball to within 18 inches of the cup. Harper's putt lipped the hole and another six went on the scorecard for the hole—a 317-yard par four.

Harper's team finished a stroke behind the winners with a 68. So did the team of Jerry Barber of Philadelphia, Clayton Heafner of Charlotte, N. C., Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago and Henry Ransom of St. Andrews, Ill.

When George Fazio of Washington, D. C., lifted his tee shot on No. 18 into the waters of Linkhorn Bay, the team that included Chick Harbert of Detroit, Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C., and Jack Burke, jr., of White Plains, N. Y., picked up. Until that time the Burke team was one over par.

Sarazen's Book Is One of Best—In Post Sunday

Gene Sarazen, most durable little guy in the history of golf, has written a book, "Thirty Years of Championship Golf."

It is as warm and friendly as the Fireside Chats with which the late President Roosevelt charmed his listeners.

Sarazen has gone back over his rich experiences for many interesting anecdotes and a selection of these personal memories will be published in The Washington Post.

They will begin Sunday and run daily for about two weeks.

Be sure to read them even though you never have set a foot on a golf course.

The book probably is the best thing ever done on golf.

Yank Homers Beat Nats

5 Griff Hurlers Give Up 18 Hits

enth inning when, without warning, they got tough and exploded for the five runs. Dente walked, Noren singled to center, Robinson singled to right and Mele drew a pass.

Evans Singles With Bases Loaded

The inning's second run scored when Vollmer forced Robinson at third base, but Kozar drew a walk to fill the bases, and Al Evans singled to center to score Mele. Page moved in and Pinch-Hitter Bob Ortiz moved the fourth run home with a fly to Mapes, and Eddie Yost singled to center for the tying run.

A balk by Page, one of the four called during the game by Umpire Jim Honochick, put two more runs in scoring position, but the Nats fluffed that chance when Dente grounded to Rizzuto.

When the Yanks came to bat, Mickey Harris made an immediate mess of the Nats' chance. He walked Henrich with his first four pitches, then balked him to second, and then pitched a home run ball to Di Maggio who put it in the left field seats.

Before the Nats could get Harris out of there and Jim Pearce in, Berra and Bill Johnson also singled. Bauer's long fly scored Berra.

Pearce put the game beyond recall in the eighth by pitching four consecutive hits to Woodling, Henrich, DiMaggio and Berra. Henrich's swat was his second homer of the year and landed in the Yankees right-center bullpen.

IN SHORT. . . Casey Stengel had more trouble raising the the pennant to the center field flag pole in the pre-game ceremonies than he had winning the thing with the Yanks last season. . . . Margaret Truman was the guest of Yankee co-owner Del Webb in the official family box in the stadium . . . when Governor Dewey summoned the Yanks to home plate, one by one, for the presentation of their world series trophies, Pitcher Tommy Byrne was too busy warming up to respond . . . until the Governor sternly demanded, in a double nominative, "Tommy Byrne, you come here;" . . . the Yanks were leading in balks, 2-0, until Mickey Harris and Jim Pearce pulled the Nats even in the late innings.

The Nats will start southpaw Steve Nagy against the Yanks tomorrow, who will come up with Rookie Righthander Bob Porterfield. POVICH.

Feather-bedding scheme of Firemen's Union to put an additional fireman on diesel locomotives has been CONSIDERED TWICE!

Fact Finding Boards appointed by Presidents Roosevelt and Truman have said these demands were "devoid of merit" and they were REJECTED TWICE!

Now the Firemen's leaders seek to paralyze railroad transportation to compel the railroads to employ a wholly unnecessary additional fireman to ride on diesel locomotives. This scheme is plain

FEATHER-BEDDING!

LEADERS OF the Firemen's union have called a nationwide strike starting with four great railroads on April 26. These railroads are the New York Central, Pennsylvania, Santa Fe, and Southern.

The union claim that a second fireman is needed on grounds of safety is sheer hypocrisy. Safety has been dragged into this dispute only in an unsuccessful effort to give a cloak of respectability to vicious feather-bedding demands.

After a careful study of the first demands of this union, a Presidential Fact Finding Board on May 21, 1943, reported to President Roosevelt that there was no need for an extra fireman on diesel locomotives.

Again, on September 19, 1949, after a second hearing on the union leaders' demands, a second Board reported to President Truman that: "there presently exists no need for an additional fireman . . . upon either the ground of safety or that of efficiency and economy of operation."

Safety Record of Diesels is Outstandingly Good

Although the railroads accepted the Board findings, the union leaders have brazenly rejected them. They represent that an extra fireman is needed for "safety" reasons. Here's what the Board had to say on that point:

"The safety and on-time performance of diesel electric locomotives operated under current rules have been notably good . . .

"Upon careful analysis of the data submitted on safety, we have concluded that no valid reasons have been shown as a support for the Brotherhood proposal under which a fireman would be required to be at all times continuously in the cab of road diesels. The proposal must be rejected."

The real reason behind these demands is that the union leaders are trying to make jobs where there is no work. In other words, a plain case of "feather-bedding."

The railroads have no intention of yielding to these wasteful make-work demands.

—PRESIDENTIAL FACT FINDING BOARD REPORT

Read these excerpts from official reports of Presidential Fact Finding Boards:

"The safety record of Diesels is outstandingly good, and it follows that the safety rules now applicable have produced good results."

"The safety and on-time performance of Diesel-electric locomotives operated under current rules indicate that Diesel-electric operation has been safer than steam locomotive operation . . ."

Remember! These are not statements of the railroads. They are just a few of the many similar conclusions reached by President Truman's Fact Finding Board which spent months investigating the claims of the union leaders.

LOOK FOR MANY UNADVERTISED VALUES THROUGHOUT THE STORE

The Federal Diary by Jerry Kluttz

Temporary Summer Jobs In Government to Be Scarce, Officials Say

This is bad news for the many thousands of students and others who are looking for summer jobs in the Government. Few such jobs will be available.

In fact, Civil Service's examining division reports that it has no requests from agencies to fill summer jobs. Also, a survey it is making has uncovered no agency here so far that will have temporary summer jobs.

The examining division is recommending to students that they take the open tests for stenographer and typist. There is still a firm demand for both typists and stenographers, it reports.

The big block of jobs to be filled here this summer will be in the Census Bureau. Between 5000 and 6000 temporary clerks and tabulating machine operators will be hired to work on the census returns. These jobs are under Civil Service and they will last from a year to 18 months. About 35,000 persons here took the test for these jobs and their papers are now being graded. Mass hiring won't start for another 60 days. Census is now hiring several thousand clerks in Philadelphia from Civil Service registers.

GUN FACTORY: Its top officials there have effectively scotched widespread rumors of another big layoff.

The big industrial establishment, in fact, is hiring a few people. It has vacancies now for: carpenters, laborers, CAF-2 typists, packers and boilermakers. It has already recalled to work several hundred employes who were laid off and top preference for the present openings are being given to its furloughed people with Civil Service status.

Officials have told employe leaders that the factory has orders to keep it in operation at its present capacity at least until the end of this year. Some small units may be cut back in the meantime, but their employes will be transferred to other duties.

The Gun Factory has taken over 220 employes in mine production work at the Alexandria Ordnance Plant and the torpedo testing station at Piney Point, Md.

OHE: Administration leaders on Capitol Hill are working on a plan to retain the Office of the Housing Expediter for at least six months after June 30. They are working on a plan to extend rent control in those States and communities where the Government is asked to do the job. But even if this proposal is approved, lay-offs will be continued at OHE.

TOP 400: The 400 officials and employes who will be paid from $11,200 to $14,000 will be announced Tuesday by the Civil Service Commission. Allocations to the jobs were mailed out yesterday to the agencies by the Civil Service Commission. The jobs were authorized by Congress six months ago.

The agencies recommended about 1000 employes for the "elite 400." "We know many persons will be bitterly disappointed," a Civil Service official commented yesterday, "but we found no way to get 1000 jobs into a 400 limitation."

BILLS: The Congress has approved and sent to the White House a bill to permit Federal workers who become ill while on official travel to continue to be paid a travel allowance . . . The President has signed into law a bill to allow any professional employe of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics to take a leave of absence up to a year to do research that would help his agency . . . A report by the Senate Postoffice and Civil Service Committee estimates the veterans' credit bill would cost 163 million dollars over a period of years. The bill would give postal World War II veterans credit toward promotions for time served in the military . . . A House Civil Service Subcommittee yesterday took no action on the Senate-approved bill to give veterans with major disabilities what amounts to absolute job rights.

AIR FORCE: Daniel M. Pruitt has been promoted to deputy director of civilian personnel at the Air Force. He was chief of field operations in the personnel branch . . . AFL employe unions will stage a conference here at the Washington Hotel on May 15, to protest the Postoffice economy program.

Papageorge Plans to Quit Public Works Job in County

Declines Statement; 'Personal Reasons' Given as Motive by Montgomery Official

By James B. Graham
Post Reporter

George T. Papageorge, director of public works for Montgomery County, will resign from the post he has held since last July, The Washington Post learned yesterday.

Papageorge, one of the three top salaried executives in the county government, will submit his resignation to County Manager Irving G. McNayr on May 1.

Papageorge

Neither Papageorge nor McNayr would discuss the action other than to say it was dictated by "personal reasons."

The works director said, however, that he would issue a statement when he turns in the resignation.

But it was learned that a major factor leading to the resignation is the belief of county heads that the department has not progressed as rapidly as it should have in its nine months existence.

Friction Reported

This opinion was also given last January by Council President Frederic P. Lee while reviewing the first year of the council-manager form of government in an interview with a Washington Post reporter. Lee declined to comment yesterday on the resignation.

Also, there has been some disagreement between Papageorge and one of his key subordinates, J. O. Harvey.

Harvey, chief of the division of equipment, maintenance and construction, is one of two long-time county employes who were absorbed into the department at its inception. The other, former County Engineer Blanton Barnett, resigned two months ago.

Papageorge Complains

The council about a month ago ordered Harvey, on Papageorge's recommendation, to move his offices from Gaithersburg to Rockville with the rest of the county offices. It later rescinded the order after hearing Harvey's objections to the move.

The wrangling between the pair came to a head at a closed meeting of the county council last Monday night. Papageorge was summoned to the session to report on the department's activities.

He complained then of his inability to obtain needed information from Harvey and charged: "I can't even find him for days at a time."

At one time during the session Papageorge was heard to exclaim: "I don't even have control of my own department."

Informed of Papageorge's remarks, Harvey explained that he is a field man and that he is "out on the job most of the time." Harvey is charged with supervision of all work done on county roads.

The appointment of Papageorge, who came from Atlanta, Ga., was criticized strongly by some county interests. They spoke out against employing the $9500-a-year executive and others from out of the State for key positions.

The most publicized accomplishment of the department under Papageorge was its preparation of a revised comprehensive road ordinance. The council is studying testimony taken at public hearings on March 11 and 14 and has taken no action yet on the proposal.

Lottery Men Told to Name 'Pick Up' Aids

Judge Warns He'll Withhold Probation Unless Accomplices Are Revealed

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

Convicted numbers writers who know the identity of their pickup man must reveal it to the authorities to merit probation, Judge Alexander Holtzoff announced yesterday.

United States Attorney George Morris Fay called the District Court jurist's statement a "forward step." Fay said that his office will attempt to utilize any information received as the result of such disclosures.

Judge Holtzoff declared during the sentencing of three on lottery charges that if a numbers racket defendant "is in a position to know" the name of his pickup-man the name must be given probation authorities. Otherwise, probation will not be given, even when all other circumstances would warrant it.

He then gave probation terms to three persons, each of whom had revealed a nickname or a name of an alleged pickup-man

Sentenced were Daniel McGillvery, 1 P st. nw., who received 2 years probation; Bessie Suber, 45, of 407 New York ave. nw., 2 years probation, and George F. Waters, 54, 209 Morgan st. nw., 3 years probation.

Before other judges, three defendants were sent to jail on charges of lottery operation.

They included Parker Robertson, 37, of 811 R st. nw. He was a key witness in the recent trial of convicted numbers bigwig William (Snags) Lewis. At the trial, Robertson, according to the Government, repudiated former statements that may have linked certain numbers slips to Lewis.

Judge James R. Kirkland gave Robertson six months for numbers writing and six to 18 months for draft-dodging.

Bayonet Slayer Gets 3-15 Years

Frederick R. (Buck) Ramey, 22, received a 3-to-15-year prison sentence yesterday for killing his wife by driving a Jap bayonet through a door into her back.

Ramey, who was indicted for second-degree murder, was convicted of manslaughter. Ramey claimed that the slaying February 8 was accidental and that he used the bayonet not to kill his wife but to "raise a racket" during a party.

The slain woman is Mrs. Maytriss M. Ramey, 20, mother of the slayer's two infant children.

Ramey stood with his head bowed during sentencing by Judge James W. Morris.

When defense attorney Leonard Leimbach argued that while it was a "useless" crime it was accidental, Judge Morris replied it was "severely serious."

In other manslaughter cases, Johny W. Daye, 23, of 1109 1st st. nw., received 5 to 15 years imprisonment for the fatal shooting of Bernice Arrington, 24, of 3218 13th st. nw. on February 11. Robert Murray, jr., 30, of 1726 Willard st. nw., received 2 to 10 years for fatally stabbing Bernard Bowling, 1761 Willard st. nw.

Joseph R. Roth, 40, a stationery firm employe of 1900 F st. nw., pleaded nolo contendere to a charge of threatening to kill Sherman M. Fairchild, the airplane manufacturer, in a letter demanding $200,000 and sent to Fairchild. Both received a one-to-five-year suspended sentence and five years probation.

Eugene H. White, 21, of 1615 12th st. nw., got a 3 to 10 year sentence for grand larceny in a filling station holdup. James Hawkins, 19, of 612½ H st. nw., received 5 to 15 years for two filling station holdups. Garfield Wood, 40, of 929 L st. nw., received 5 to 15 years for two holdups, and Thomas L. Cummins, 18, of 1615 New Hampshire ave. nw., received 20 months to 5 years in a pocketbook snatching.

Long Jail Terms

4 Sentenced For Air Base Dope Traffic

Four men—three of them from the Washington area—were given prison sentences in Baltimore Federal Court yesterday for peddling narcotics at Andrews Air Force Base.

Federal Judge William C. Coleman sentenced each man to 4½ years.

The three local men were identified as William T. Harris, 29, of 607 Freedmen's ct. nw.; Judson Broadus, 26, of 606 59th ave., Fairmount Heights, Md., and Harvey Edward Witherspoon, 29, whose address was not listed. The fourth man was Charlie Timmons, 22, of Baltimore.

The case of another man arrested in the Andrews Base cleanup was postponed. A sixth man was accused, but has never been caught.

Only one serviceman was implicated in the narcotics sales at Andrews, but a number of airmen were disciplined and some were discharged from the service.

At yesterday's proceedings in Baltimore, a Federal agent said narcotics conditions seem to be growing worse, particularly in Washington. He told Judge Coleman that dope peddlers are still active here despite a series of dope raids last autumn that brought 36 convictions.

5 Left Homeless By Norbeck Fire

Fire destroyed a four-room frame tenant house yesterday on the 335-acre dairy farm of Mrs. James B. Welsh, Emory rd., 1 mile north of Norbeck, Md., in Montgomery County.

Left homeless were the tenant farmer, James Budd, 36; his wife, Irene, 48, and their three children, Mose, 14; Beulah, 11, and James, jr., 10. The blaze brought out the Gaithersburg-Washington Grove and Rockville volunteer fire departments. They said the fire was started by an overheated wood stove.

Government Girl From D. C. Raped In Hollywood

Hollywood, April 21 (AP).—A Hollywood publicist was jailed today on suspicion of raping a vacationing Government girl clerk from Washington, D. C.

The young woman, who is 24, told Sheriff's Lieut. Ralph Wyatt that she met Fred Seelig, 41, yesterday. She said he impressed her with talk of entertainment business connections and they made a date for last evening.

Wyatt said she related that after a show and a round of cocktail bars, Seelig took her home, beat and raped her, took her about two blocks away, then told her "now you're on your own." She made her way to a hospital where, Wyatt said, examination showed she had been raped and also had a broken jaw.

Investigators said Seelig denied he attacked her.

Cobb Is Found Innocent of Lottery Charge

Josias M. Cobb, Bladensburg town councilman, yesterday was cleared of charges of permitting gambling on his premises.

Trial Magistrate Alan Bowie, who heard the case in Marlboro Police Court, said the State failed to prove that Cobb knew gambling was going on.

Cobb's arrest grew out of a raid on March 23 of the house at 4114 46th st., which Cobb owns, but which he rents to Ollie Holland, 50. Cobb lives at 4112 46th st., the house next door.

When police raided the house at 4114, they found gaming evidence. They charged Holland with operating and maintaining a lottery. Another man, Clyde R. Wilkins, 27, of 4412 46th st., was charged with possession of numbers slips.

Cobb, 57, a garage owner, surrendered voluntarily to police when he learned a warrant had been issued for his arrest.

The raid last month was led by Policeman Henry J. Nebel, 24 hours after the town council had suspended him. Nebel later was dismissed from the force after he was found guilty of a charge of "failing to stay on duty during official tours of duty."

At yesterday's hearing, both Nebel and Policeman William A. Baxter, who accompanied him on the raid, were asked by Judge Bowie whether "of your own knowledge" they knew that Cobb knew gaming was going on in the house at 4114.

Both men answered that Cobb "lived next door."

Bowie said they had not proved Cobb's guilt.

Cobb's attorney, Robert W. McCullough, yesterday secured a change of venue for Holland and Wilkins, who will be tried before Judge Walter Owens at a date yet to be set.

'3-Time Loser'

Ex-Convict Sought in Warring Case

A former New York convict has been identified and made subject of a warrant in the $33,400 Emmit Warring robbery here last January 9, police announced yesterday.

Pelkisson

He was listed as Arthur Pelkisson, 38, already a "three-time loser" with robbery and burglary convictions, who now is wanted by New York authorities for another robbery.

The other two named in the home holdup of the gambling figure here are bulky Sidney Stromberg, 32, now held on a murder charge at Pottsville, Pa., and Malcolm Epstein, 40, held at Pittsburgh on 18 charges of armed robbery, holdup and larceny.

When Stromberg and Epstein were first identified by Warring's brother-in-law, William Cady, and the Warring maid, Louise Enos, police put out circulars for them.

Recently, they said yesterday, they obtained information that Pelkisson was an associate of Stromberg and had been connected with the Warring robbery. They obtained pictures of Pelkisson, which were identified by Cady and the maid. On the basis of these identifications, the robbery warrant was issued for him.

For some time the robbery was not officially reported to police, though they heard about it a short time after it occurred and talked with Warring. Later, it was officially reported and the hunt for the three men was started.

The Warring robbery was one of several here, mostly unreported, involving gambling figures, which occurred late last year and early this year.

Prince Georges Tax Rate Cut 7c Per $100

The Prince Georges County commissioners yesterday announced a 7-cent cut in the county tax rate for the year 1950.

The basic county tax rate, which this year was $1.97 per $100 assessed valuation, will drop to $1.90 for the next year.

At the same time, the board, through chairman Harry W. McNamee, announced that the entire instructional budget of the County Board of Education had been allowed in full. McNamee explained that this included teachers, staff, clerk hire, telephone expense, and cost of all instructional materials.

The budget, as approved by the commissioners, contains the $119,513 which the State had cut from the county's portion of State school funds. It also contains a $40,000 item to permit the start of a county recreation program.

The flat $40,000 allowance is $4338 less than the Recreation Board had requested, on the basis of a levy of 2 cents per $100 for recreation purposes.

Although the total budget figure will not be released until next Tuesday, the commissioners did state that the Board of Education will receive $2,362,248, as compared with its original request of $2,412,009.

McNamee said that the commissioners conferred with School Superintendent Gardner W. Shugart and his staff and agreed to defers some items of "minor capital outlay and maintenance" totaling $164,274.

Officials emphasized that the deferment would not affect school construction programs, but would result in postponement of such work as grading, landscaping, etc.

Prince Georges County schools will have an instructional budget of $3,976,964, some of which is money paid in State grants. The board of education budget figure, $2,362,248, will be paid from county funds.

The commissioners announced they were holding the levy for the county library at 2 cents, even though they had been requested to raise it to 2½ cents. McNamee pointed out that the library will get more than $4000 in additional revenues next year without the rate increase, because of the increased assessable base of county real estate.

It was this increase, of approximately 25 million dollars, which largely accounted for the commissioners' decision to lower the tax rate during the coming year. Officials said they believed the lower rate would still permit operation of county governmental functions without impairment.

Man Kills Self In Son's Home At Silver Spring

Bernard Vincent Moran, sr., 89, retired Railway Express Agency worker, ended his life with a bullet from a .22-caliber pistol yesterday in Montgomery County.

The body was found at 7 p. m. by his son, Bernard, jr. The father had been living with his son and daughter-in-law, at 4306 Mahan rd., Viers Mill Vilage, Silver Spring, Md., since his retirement four months ago because of ill health.

County Detective Kenneth Watkins said Moran had shot himself in the heart as he lay in bed. The pistol was found beside the bed.

Dr. Frank J. Broschart, county medical examiner, issued a certificate of suicide.

Man Acquitted of Biting Census Enumerator's Digits

The census will be taken despite bitten fingers and bruised feelings.

In Municipal Court yesterday, Census Enumerator Lawrence Robinson, of 56 53d pl. se., complained that when he went to the home of George P. Smith, 2638 Nichols ave. se., on Tuesday for a nose-counting, it wound up in a nose-punching.

Robinson said that when he asked Smith's wife where her husband worked the week before, Smith beat him, chewed a finger and threw him out, his census portfolio following.

The Smiths version was that after the question and a few words passed, Robinson knocked Smith down, whereupon the Smith dog took revenge on a Robinson finger.

Judge Thomas D. Quinn acquitted Smith, an ash hauler, of assault.

Census officials said that despite the incident, the census will be taken and the Smiths enumerated, but it will be done by one of Robinson's top superiors.

Bill to Shift 'Age' Bureau Here Favored

House Public Works Committee approval was forecast yesterday for a bill authorizing a new $11,500,000 building at Suitland, Md., for the Federal Bureau of Old Age and Survivors Insurance.

The bureau, part of the Social Security Administration, is located in Baltimore. Its main building is a converted waterfront warehouse. There and in other buildings are offices for some 500 employes and social security records of some 95 million persons.

Committee members made their predictions of speedy approval for the bill after hearing Federal officials recommend its adoption, and advise the transfer of the bureau's employes in Baltimore to the Washington area.

Testifying for the bill were W. E. Reynolds, Federal Public Buildings Commissioner, and W. L. Mitchell, deputy commissioner of the Social Security Administration. The latter warned that the Baltimore quarters represent a fire hazard, and said a fire in the records could cause losses running into millions for those whose records might be destroyed.

Reynolds said the site of the new building should be selected with advice of the National Security Resources Board. Representative J. Harry McGregor (R., Ohio) said, however, an amendment would probably be made to place the building on land now owned by the Federal Government at Suitland.

Committee Chairman William M. Whittington (D., Miss.) asked officials to submit additional information on the possible Suitland site.

Capital Transit Co. will eliminate two 14th st. streetcar routes May 7 because the lines aren't doing enough business. It estimated the cut will save the company $110,000 a year.

The company's request for permission to drop Routes 52 and 59 was approved yesterday by the District Public Utilities Commission.

No. 52 operates all day from 14th and Decatur sts. nw to 9th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw. by way of 14th and 11th sts. The other is a rush hour route on 14th st. between Decatur st. nw. and Potomac Park.

CTC claimed passenger traffic on the Potomac Park route had declined 85 percent since the war and that there was little demand for Route 52 on upper 14th st.

The company told the PUC it would increase service in other 11th and 14th sts. routes to make up for the loss. The 11th st. No. 60 would be extended down to 6th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., CTC said. Other changes are being studied.

Citizens groups had protested that persons wishing to travel from 14th st. to 11th st. would suffer from the change. The PUC held that adequate crosstown facilities are available and that the change is justified by increased service on upper 11th st. and the "substantial savings" to the company.

Seven Men Held For Grand Jury on Woman's Charge

Judge Thomas D. Quinn of Municipal Court set bond at $5000 for each defendant after they waived hearing.

The woman told police that one of her assailants had been dancing with her and then followed her into a bedroom where he pushed her onto a bed and assaulted her. The others followed.

Those held were listed on court papers as Robert Savage, 25, 1633 12th st. nw.; Clyde McAllister, 19, 1528 12th st. nw.; Ulysses H. Griffin, 19, 1334 Corcoran st. nw.; James T. Evans, 23, 1615 12th st. nw.; John H. Washington, 21, 1615 12th st. nw.; Lee R. Chambers, 19, 86 Myrtle st. ne., and William Fisher, 38, 1633 12th st. nw.

At Carlton Hotel

7-Floor Fall In Shaft Kills Elevator Man

A 65-year-old elevator operator at the Carlton Hotel fell to his death early yesterday in the shaft of one of the cars he had operated.

He was Benjamin F. Adams, who lived with a brother, John, his only immediate survivor, at 905 9th st. ne.

Police said they believe he either stumbled and fell into the shaft as he went to remove a plunger from the open door, or stepped in with the mistaken belief the car was at the floor with its lights out.

Another operator, James C. Walton, 920 Maryland ave. ne., told police that, a short time before, Adams had taken ice to an eighth-floor room, and then returned in some way to the first floor. Walton said Adams told him he was going to the eighth floor to get the plunger.

Moments later he crashed through the roof of the car which was at the first-floor level, and landed on the floor. Police said glasses, which he normally wore, were found intact in his pocket.

Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, District coroner, said that death was caused by a crushed skull and issued a certificate of accidental death.

Adams, who was unmarried, had worked at the Carlton Hotel for six years. Before that he was a ticket examiner at the Washington Terminal Co. for 26 years.

$150 Per Week Demanded by Mrs. Brewster

Frederick, Md., April 21 (Spl.). A Washington attorney was under court order today to show cause on May 4 why he should not pay $150 a week for support of his wife and daughter while his divorce action is pending.

And he also must show cause why he should not be restrained from disposing of any of his allegedly extensive property holdings until the outcome of the suit is determined.

He is Kingman Brewster, who has offices in the Southern Building and a large ranch in this county. Mrs. Brewster, and their daughter, Barbara, live in an apartment at 2500 Q st. nw., Washington. The Brewsters also have two older children.

Brewster brought the action against Mrs. Brewster here 10 days ago asking an absolute divorce on the ground of voluntary separation for more than three years.

She has not yet filed an answer to the action, but through her attorney, Robert E. Clapp, jr., here, instituted the show-cause action. It asks for $125 a week for her; $25 a week for the daughter, and $500 attorney fees.

The petition for the show cause order charged that Brewster is principal stockholder of the Blue Ridge Farms, Inc., and K-B Ranch, Inc., which together own about 1260 acres of land in this county. Further, the petition asserted, Brewster owns property on 15th st. nw., in Washington, has over $8000 in the bank, and that his total assets are in excess of $200,000. Mrs. Brewster charged the $200 a month she now receives is insufficient for her living expenses.

Brewster, a native of Worthington, Mass., is a graduate of Amherst and the Harvard Law School and has been a member of the District Bar since 1923. During the 1920's he held Government posts, later was a member of law firms in Washington as well as an officer of corporations. He also is author of books and articles on legal and tax subjects.

A native of Albany, she made her first Broadway appearance in 1888 with Robert B. Mantell. For many years she was a star in Charles Frohman's productions.

Suicide Verdict Issued in Death Of Architect

A verdict of suicide was issued yesterday by Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, District coroner, in the death of John J. Columbus, 41, of 6609 16th st. nw., an architect for the Public Housing Administration.

Columbus' body was discovered by his brother, Joseph, Thursday night, in an unused basement bedroom in the home after the architect had been missing for two days.

Dr. MacDonald said death came from a knife-stab wound in the chest, which had inflicted an injury to the heart. Police said Columbus' body lay half on and half off a bed in the unused bedroom. Beneath it, they said, were two home-made kitchen knives, an open jack knife, and a safety-razor blade.

Dr. MacDonald said he was informed Columbus had been in ill health for some time and was despondent. He had been on sick leave from PHA for about a month.

Columbus lived in the 16th st. home with his brother, who found him, and his sister, Miss Mary Columbus.

A native of Washington, Columbus attended Central High School and graduated from Catholic University in 1932. He served as a Navy lieutenant commander during the last war, and later was an architect with the Department of the Army, before joining PHA last December. He also was president of Madame Viboud, Inc., at 1522 Connecticut ave. nw.

Columbus' father, Charles J. Columbus, died in 1944 as result of an accidental fall down stairs in the home. He was a former secretary of the Washington Advertising Club and at one time was secretary of the Merchants & Manufacturers Association.

$1400 Reward Is Posted for Renner Slayer

The killer of a Washington woman lawyer still stalked beneath the peaceful pines on the tiny island of New Providence in the Bahamas last night.

But police on the British island were pressing a grim search for the sex fiend who murdered Miss Bettie Renner, 37, of 1720 21st st. nw.

The police took these steps:

1. Offered a reward of 500 pounds ($1400) for help in capturing the slayer.

2. Set up a close watch at all means of exit from the island.

3. Broadened their hunt for a man described by three witnesses as a Negro, who was seen bicycling with Miss Renner shortly before she met death.

4. Announced they might call in Scotland Yard and the FBI

Former FBI Employe

Miss Renner, former FBI employe and Justice Department attorney who had been a senior member in a private law firm here for the past 14 months, was slain Tuesday afternoon.

Her body was found 24 hours later, nude except for a brassiere, wedged in a shallow wall in an abandoned quarry. She had been beaten about the head with a club but death resulted from drowning. Her clothes were nearby.

An autopsy gave no positive proof of rape but authorities said there were signs on the body that indicated it was a sex crime.

As the murder investigation continued, Police Commissioner G. R. Rance declared, "We will not hesitate to call in Scotland Yard and the FBI, if necessary."

Offered to Be Guide

Police believe a stranger offered to guide the attractive Washington woman to a monastery she planned to visit and instead lured her to her death.

They learned that Miss Renner had set out on her bicycle from Nassau to St. Augustine Monastery. On the way she encountered a priest and verified her route with him.

The monastery is in the eastern section of the island. Miss Renner took a wrong turn and headed west. She approached a lonely, uninhabited pine forest where charcoal burners produce their fuel and found herself lost.

"She apparently stopped her assailant to ask directions," police said.

Sudden Attack

It is surmised that the stranger offered to guide her, led her to the coral-strewn clearing at the quarry site and suddenly attacked her with a piece of wood.

Police believe the attack was sudden and violent for Miss Renner, 5 feet 11, was an expert at jiu-jitsu and could have defended herself against an ordinary assault.

Miss Renner was probably unconscious when her slayer stripped her of all but her brassiere and then dragged her body across the rough coral to the well which is only 4 feet deep and contained only 2 feet of water.

Vain Concealment

Her body had been thrust into the well in a jacknifed position, head and feet first. The murderer tossed several tree limbs on top of the body in a vain attempt to hide it.

Authorities released the body to two brothers of the victim, Frederick P. and Charles H. Renner, who arrived by plane from Miami. They will accompany the body to Washington, leaving Nassau by boat Sunday.

Sibley, who had just left his job here with the Veterans Administration, was married six months ago. He was traveling West in search of employment, according to Col. Joseph S. Edgerton, 1332 Montague st. nw., a friend of the family.

'2-Bottle' Treatment In Colds Described

Under Health Plan

Illnesses, 'Lost' Days Up in Britain

London, April 21 (NYHT).—In Britain's first year of socialized medicine, the number of reported illnesses among the adult population increased 8 percent and days lost from work for health reasons 22 percent, a government survey indicated today.

The survey contrasted health conditions with the preceding 12 months and showed that:

1. The number of adults who complained of illness under the National Health Program increased 5 percent.

2. Consultations between doctors and patients by adults were an average of 13 percent above the preceding year.

3. The number of women who remained away from work or were kept home because of illness was greater than men. Among younger women, there was a 32 percent increase in physical "incapacity" and among older women 41 percent. Young men showed an increase of 8 percent, older men 9 percent.

Dr. W. P. D. Logan, medical statistician of the General Registration Office, said:

"There can be little doubt that before the start of the new National Health Service many women —especially, but not exclusively, elderly women — were deterred from seeking medical advice by economic reasons.

"Now that the financial barrier has been removed, women, who, the records show, complain of illness considerably more often than men, are able to consult their doctor more often than they did before.

"It seems likely that the increased number of days of incapacity reported by women has been a direct consequence of more frequent medical attention."

Boston, April 21 (AP).—Your own body's air-conditioning and heating system is more responsible than anything else for common colds, the American College of Physicians was told today.

Dr. William J. Kerr, University of California Medical School, said your air-conditioning is your nasal passages. They warm the air and remove all dust and impurities. Your heating system is something you inherit, and it keeps your body at even temperature in all kinds of changes.

But doctors, he said, are as confused as the public as to what a common cold is and how to treat it. He urged doctors to reconsider the entire evidence to see whether they may be on the wrong track.

Dr. Kerr said: "No treatment yet devised has ever certainly prevented or cured an attack. The diplopia, or two-bottle treatment with alcohol, still has its advocates. The patient is placed in a warm bed with a bottle of Scotch or Bourbon. A full swallow is taken every 15 minutes and the bottle is placed at the foot of the bed after each drink. When the sufferer sees two bottles, he should wrap up warmly and sleep it off. This method is not advocated but it is no more harmful than some currently advocated."

A new blue baby operation, which might be called three-leaf clover surgery, was reported as an improvement over the original blue baby surgery of Dr. Alfred Blalock, Johns Hopkins. It was invented by Dr. Blalock and Dr. Russell Brock, London, England. The blue baby's color is due to the failure of the right side of the heart to pump blood into the lungs.

Disease Germs Spread Far and High in Air

Atlantic City, N. J., April 21 (AP).—Disease germs spread far and high in outdoor air during epidemics of influenza and milder respiratory infections, Dr. Edward C. Rosenow, Cincinnati, said today. Their aerial travel may help along the chain-reaction of infection, he said.

How caffeine, in coffee or soft drinks, may aggravate stomach ulcers was described by Dr. James A. L. Roth, University of Pennsylvania. Caffeine and meat extracts together produce more stomach acids than the total they would produce by acting separately, he declared.

ACTH Output Jumps, Hospitals to Benefit

Chicago, April 21 (AP).—The output of ACTH, the super-scarce wonder hormone, has jumped so sharply that "a large number of hospitals" may be supplied in a few months to treat their most critical cases, Armour and Co., largest producer of the hormone from hog glands, announced.

At the same time, five medical investigators reported that ACTH is of no value against infantile paralysis, while another group reported preliminary study indicated ACTH was effective against various inflammatory eye diseases.

New York, April 21.—Eugene Meyer, chairman of the board of The Washington Post, was reelected a board member of the National Industrial Conference Board, Inc., for a one-year term at the board's 313th regular meeting yesterday.

Founded 34 years ago, the conference board is a nonprofit, fact-finding organization which is supported by more than 3000 business concerns, labor unions, trade associations, Government bureaus, libraries, colleges and universities. The board is considered a source of facts and figures bearing on all aspects of economic life and business operation.

Doctors at Clinic Criticize 'Assembly-Line' Treatments

Frederick, Md., April 21 (AP).—A panel of widely-known doctors found a lot of things about their profession to criticize here today.

They agreed that the high pressure drives for money to fight cancer, polio, heart disease and other scourges may have gotten out of hands—become "scare campaigns."

They agreed that too many doctors try to fit the patient to the cure rather than the cure to the patient—a kind fo assembly-line medicine.

They agreed that many doctors muff the psychological aspects of treating high blood pressure, diabetes, and the veneral diseases. Some doctors, for example, get a high blood pressure patient to worrying because he can't stop worrying.

One of the experts said doctors ought to spend more time studying healthy people. If they can find out what keeps them healthy they can better help sick people get well.

The comments were tossed back and forth by nine doctors in a panel discussion before a session of the week-long mental hygiene institute for Maryland's county health officers and their assistants.

Dr. Maurice Greenhill, directo of a mental clinic at Duke Univer sity, led the discussion. It wa Dr. Greenhill who proposed that doctors, particularly psychologists, spend more time with happy, well-balanced families.

Others on the panel included Dr. Jerome Hartz, Baltimore psychiatrist; Dr. Perry F. Prather, Washington County health officer; Dr. William G. Hardly, director of the Hearing and Speech Center at Johns Hopkins, and three members of the State Health Department staff; Dr. Dean Roberts, chief of the Bureau of Medical Services; Dr. Leon H. Hetherington, chief of TB service, and Dr. Ross W. Cameron, chief of the cancer control division.

Three Suing to Obtain $119,000 From $990 Investment

Hartford, Conn., April 20 (AP).—The story of how an investment of $990 was parlayed into a $1,763,000 contract in three months in 1946 unfolded in Superior Court here this week.

It was told in testimony before Judge James E. Murphy in the trial of a suit brought by United States Industries, Inc., of Washington, D. C., against the Emperor Diesel Engine Co. of San Francisco, Calif.

According to the testimony, three Californians, in March, 1946, heard that the procurement division of the United States Treasury was seeking Diesel engines for the UNRRA program for aid to China.

Investing $330 each, they organized the Diesel Engine Co. and through the Washington firm obtained a contract with the Treasury Department to supply 1700 Diesel engines for UNRRA for $1,763,000.

The company posted a performance bond and received from the Treasury Department an advance of $884,000, or half the contract price, with which to start production.

Under the contract between the two companies, the Washington firm was to receive $90 per engine for its services in obtaining the UNRRA order. In a later agreement, this sum was reduced to $70 an engine, or $119,000 for the 1700 engines.

The Diesel company filled its contract, obtaining parts for the engines from sub-contractors.

Meanwhile, the Treasury Department learned of the agreement to pay the Washington firm $70 per engine. It called the Diesel Engine Co's. attention to a clause in its contract warranting that it had not employed anyone to solicit the contract for a commission. The Federal agency then said it would allow the United States Industries to collect only $5 per engine, or $8500 in all.

The Washington firm, in the legal action here, is seeking to recover $130,000 for services in procuring the contract.

Two of the founders of the Diesel Company, Arthur L. Clark and William H. Meade, and Henry C. Howells, president of the Washington firm, were among witnesses in the trial.

The doctor made an incision and massaged her heart through the diaphragm. The woman, Mrs. Ora Bell Potts, 29, is recovering. She had been stabbed in a family argument.

Duke St. Mansion to Attract Visitors on Alexandria Tour

When a young man wins the hand of a belle "whom half the world was in pursuit of," he is more than likely to build her the finest house he can afford. That's true today, and was in 1783 when Ben Dulany of Alexandria built the mansion at 601 Duke st. which is one of the main attractions of the homes tour sponsored by the Garden Club of Alexandria next week.

Mr. Dulany's lovely bride was Elizabeth French, a ward of General George Washington, and it was the general himself who testified to her popularity with 'half the world' in one of his letters. Today Dulany house is the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Howard Joynt, who have maintained its interior and its garden in the best 18th century tradition.

The very threshold of this house has been hallowed by history, for the Marquis de Lafayette spoke from the steps when he visited Alexandria in 1824. And on one wall hangs a portrait of Sarah Weems, whose imaginative uncle, Parson Weems, started America's favorite legend about George Washington and the cherry tree. Two Copley and two Stuart portraits are among the treasures which furnish the house. The Joynt house will be open to Garden Week visitors Monday through Saturday, as will the Goodale, Moore and Wellington homes, the old Presbyterian Meeting House and Pohick Church, which are also on the Alexandria tour. Gadsby's Tavern, Woodlawn and Gunston Hall are open from Saturday, April 22, through Saturday, April 29.

Alexandria's "open house" is part of Historic Garden Week in Virginia, which is sponsored by the Garden Clubs of Virginia, to which the Garden Club of Alexandria belongs. Mrs. Malcolm Matheson, jr., is chairman for the Alexandria area.

To test: Take a few beans on tip of spoon and blow on them gently; if skins break and curl back they are sufficiently cooked. Turn beans into bean pot. Pour boiling water over one-half pound fat salt pork, scrape rind until white, score in half-inch strips and press into top of beans, leaving only rind exposed. Mix two teaspoons salt, one tablespoon brown sugar, one-fourth cup dark molasses, one-half teaspoon dry mustard and one-half teaspoon Worcestershire sauce; add one cup boiling water and pour over beans. Add additional water to cover beans if necessary. Cover and bake in slow oven (250 to 300 degrees F.) for six to eight hours, adding additional water to keep beans just covered; uncover during last half hour to brown pork and beans. One small onion may be placed in bottom of bean pot. Yield: Six to eight portions.

Independents Charge Steel Price Squeeze

By The Associated Press

Two California structural steel makers told Congress yesterday that a competitive price squeeze by subsidiaries of major steel companies threatens to put West Coast independent fabricators out of business.

They declared that expansion of basic steel producers into the "end product" field has become a "matter of concern" to all small independents.

The contentions were contained in testimony before a House monopoly investigating committee by J. Philip Murphy, president of the Judson Pacific Murphy Co., and Kenneth M. Keegan, president of the Independent Iron Works, both of Oakland, Calif.

Murphy predicted the big companies eventually would corner the fabricating and structural steel business if permitted to dominate the industry from "the ore to the tin can placed at your door."

Both he and Keegan asserted West Coast subsidiaries of U. S. Steel Corp. and Bethlehem Steel Corp. were getting the bulk of the business in their area following recent advances in the price of finished steel.

These higher prices "did not appear" to be reflected in the competitive bids of fabricating subsidiaries of the basic producers, Murphy testified.

As a consequence, he said, the Independents were losing most of the West Coast business through inability to absorb their increased steel costs. In his case, Murphy testified, it amounted to $5 to $6 a ton.

Keegan conceded that competition had increased on the West Coast since the war, but said it was mostly "mill competition"—from big mills with integrated production and fabricating operations.

Fairless Sees Peril To Economize System

Baltimore, April 21 (AP).—The president of the United States Steel Corp. said today he believes "our American economic system is in deadlier peril than it has ever been in my lifetime."

Benjamin F. Fairless made the statement before a meeting of the Baltimore Association of Commerce.

The U. S. Steel executive said he knew the American economic system has always defended itself successfully against its enemies abroad but added:

"I honestly do not know how it can be protected against its self-styled 'friends' in Washington who would literally hack it to death on the pretext of saving its immortal soul. I am convinced that if these misguided planners and politically ambitious office holders have their way, freedom of initiative, and freedom of enterprise will vanish from this earth.

"Whether you call it the square deal the fair deal, the new deal or just plain Federal regulation, the fact remains that once the dead hand of politics gets its convulsive grip on American business and industry, free competition will be strangled and our economic system will be no different—and no more successful—than those noble experiments which are crumbling into dust in Europe."

Floods Leave 6000 Homeless In No. Dakota

Bismarck, N. Dak., April 21 (U.P.)—Flood waters left more than 6000 persons homeless today as the Red River and its tributaries spilled over and began to fill the huge basin of a prehistoric lake.

The waters, fed by thawing snow, inundated vast areas of eastern North Dakota and northwestern Minnesota once forming Lake Agassiz, dried up since the ice age 20,000 years ago.

The Weather Bureau promised no immediate relief. Snow-melting temperatures and more rain were expected to pour in more water from two sources.

Hardest hit single community was Grand Forks, N. Dak., where the Red River touched the 42.73-foot mark yesterday afternoon, tying a 53-year record. More than 275 families fled before the encroaching waters which covered the entire north end of the city.

In Winnipeg, Man., hundreds of flood-threatened residents prepared for evacuation as the Red River rose a foot above flood stage. Officials decribed this as the worst flood threat in 50 years.

Maryland Will Get Test Case On Status of Police Records

Baltimore, April 21 (AP).—A test case which may determine whether police blotters and magistrate's dockets are open to the public was filed today in Baltimore City Court.

The controversy has been coming to a head for 10 days, since Judge Joseph Sherbow declared in Criminal Court that such records are public property.

Attorney Milton R. Rothstein filed the suit on behalf of Thomas Johnson, 24, who was arrested April 5 by two policemen on larceny and narcotics charges.

The petition declares that Johnson was held five days, during which the police "arbitrarily and capriciously refused him permission to see any docket of any kind in connection with his arrest and possible charges against him" and "neither his family nor anyone else was permitted to see him."

The suit is against Police Commissioner Beverely Ober. It was filed before Judge E. Paul Mason. The commission has 21 days to file an answer.

Kreisler Four Play Master's Novel Music

By Paul Hume

Music by Fritz Kreisler was the novelty of last night's Budapest Quartet concert in the Library of Congress.

The great violinist, who celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday in February, was represented by his string quartet. We have heard Kreisler's songs, operettas, a concerto, and above all, his violin pieces. Here was a different medium, but the same composer.

The music is unfailingly pleasing, from the cello's opening declamation to the gypsy measures of the finale. Harmonically it is full of the lush chords of the Viennese school of the post-Wagner-Strauss era. It is hardly necessary to point out the skill with which it employs the four stringed instruments.

The Budapest men played it with affection and real style. In the climax of the first movement, Roisman's tone was thinner, in the first violin, than ideal balance would have provided.

But in the perfection of Mozart's G Major quartet which opened the evening Roisman shone in the purity and execution of his handling of the florid writing. First of the great "Haydn" quartets, the G Major has its unique charms. Each of these astounding tributes to an older genius shows Mozart in a different shade of his constant brilliant light.

The quartet played the entire work with the finest discipline, infused with their wonted warmth.

Rail Freight Rate on Steel To Be Cut 25%

A proposed 25-percent cut in railroad freight rates on iron and steel in the East can become effective May 1, the Interstate Commerce Commission said yesterday.

The ICC said it had voted not to interfere with public notice of the reduction recently given by the eastern railroads. The commission heard arguments here Tuesday on the rate cut plan.

Motor carriers had objected to the proposed rate cut and instead offered a compromise plan which the ICC turned down.

The railroads said the rate reductions are designed to regain some of the heavy freight traffic that had been diverted to highway truckers during the postwar period in which rail rates were given a long succession of boosts.

The motor carriers held that the cuts again would throw their competitive relationship with railroads out of balance. Some water carriers also advised the ICC that they would lose iron and steel business under the proposal.

Rate Cut Suspended On Alcoholic Liquors

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday temporarily suspended a plan of Southern railroads to reduce their rates on shipments of alcoholic liquors by about 14 percent.

The railroads had filed notice to put the rate reductions into effect today in the territory south of the Ohio and Potomac Rivers and east of the Mississippi on carload shipments of liquors, including wine.

The ICC action was taken at the request of Southern trucking companies that objected to the reductions which would place rail rates on a level with or a cent or two lower than truck rates.

The ICC suspended the reductions until November 21 pending an investigation. It ordered a hearing to begin May 22.

D. C. Man, 45, Convicted of Morals Charge

Robert Snead Williams, jr., 45, of 4537 49th st. nw., was found guilty yesterday of indecent exposure by Municipal Judge Aubrey B. Fennell.

Williams, a trustee of the All Souls Unitarian Church, was released under $2000 bond for sentencing in 30 days. A condition of his release was that he seek the care of a psychiatrist during the interim.

The case was bitterly fought for four days. A dozen character witnesses testified in behalf of Williams.

At the beginning, the courtroom was cleared of all spectators, including the press, after defense attorneys said they wanted to avoid publicity for their client.

After reporters challenged their exclusion, Judge Fennell reconsidered and allowed them to come back into the courtroom as "a matter of right."

The complaining witnesses were two teen-age girls. They said that on April 10 at 5:10 p. m. on Massachusetts ave. nw., near American University, a man indecently exposed himself. They met a policeman two blocks away and told him of the incident and pointed out Williams when he passed in his automobile several minutes later.

Williams denied he was in the vicinity at the time of the indecent act, saying that he was arrested while he was driving home from 14th and Main ave. nw.

In closing argument, his attorneys pointed to him as a family man. Also they said it was impossible with his background of school-teaching and as a commander in the Navy he committed the offense.

He had been a carpentry instructor in various District and public schools and for a time he served in rehabilitation work with the Veterans' Administration. He is now an estimator for a lumber firm.

Murray Proposes Emergency Plan To Aid Jobless

An emergency program of legislation to alleviate unemployment, including revival of the Civilian Conservation Corps of New Deal days, was urged yesterday by Philip Murray, president of the CIO.

Unemployment last month stood at 4,123,000, according to government figures.

Murray said that in more than 80 cities and towns idleness has reached between seven and 12 percent of the labor force.

He asked that Congress also give 26 weeks more of unemployment compensation to the estimated one million to 1,500,000 unemployed who have exhausted their benefits, and set up a fund of $1,800,000,000 which the President could tap to accelerate public works programs in depressed areas.

2 Brothers Sue for Part Of Store Site

Two brothers have filed suit in Arlington Circuit Court to recover a six and one-eighth acre portion of the 18-acre Arlington site for a proposed new Hecht Company store. Damages of $250,000 also are asked.

The Hecht Company, which holds an option on the land, and 10 other persons and corporations with an interest in the property are named defendants in the suit. It was filed Thursday by George Wilfred Beall, 3801 N. Stafford st. and William Herbert Beall, 2009 N. Oakland st., Arlington, represented by attorneys Edgar Pumphrey and Warren E. Miller.

The brothers claim in their suit that, under the will of their great-grandfather, John T. Birch, the land should have reverted to them at the time of their father's death in January, 1949.

Papers filed in the suit allege that Birch's will gave the land to their father, George Beall, only for "the term of his natural life" and that the property thereafter should have reverted to his descendants under terms of the will.

The property, first sold by George Beall in the early 1900s, has passed through "a great number of hands' since that time, his son, George W. Beall told a reporter yesterday.

U. of Calif. Regents Vote to Discard Own Loyalty Oath

Davis, Calif., April 21 (U.P.).—Regents of the University of California today voted 21 to 1 to discard their controversial anti-Communist oath for university employes in favor of a compromise proposal.

The lone dissenting vote was cast by Regent Lawrence M. Giannini, president of the Bank of America, who called the settlement "a victory for communism and resigned.

The regents had insisted that all employes, including professors, sign an anti-Communist oath or lose their jobs. The special oath was in addition to the standard oath of loyalty to the Constitution.

The compromise provides that employes sign the oath required of all State officials and swear "I am not a member of the Communist Party or any other organization which advocates the overthrow of the Government by force or violence."

Persons declining may petition for a hearing. Power of final decision would be retained by the regents.

3 MOST BEAUTIFUL HILLS
AT THE NATION'S CAPITAL

These hills have a frontage of nearly a mile and a half on River rd. and Bradley overlooking Congressional Country Club. You know River rd. is going to be changed soon to Mass. ave. extended. Now the most beautiful hill has the most beautiful setting for a home in the United States. I offered it to the public and you wouldn't buy it, now I won't let you have it. I am going to build my own home on it. The home will look a good deal like George Washington's home in Mount Vernon, but it will have a better setting. This home has a far better setting than our own White House lot. I have been dealing in acreage all my life and why should I let this beautiful homesite get out of my own hands. Mr. James E. Elgin, the best builder in Washington, will build the best home on the best setting of any home built in or around Washington. We hope to get the house started in 30 days. Ride up on the hill and watch the construction. I have 2 other beautiful hills there. If you want one, ride up on these beautiful hills and look at them. You can reach me at my home, WO. 0933. Dean's Ex-Wife Gets 2 Years in Shooting

Athens, Ga., April 21 (U.P.). — An all-male jury found tonight that Mrs. Kathleen Drewry was not justified or mentally off-balance when she shot her rival for a university dean's love, and sentenced her to serve two to four years in prison.

The verdict of guilty in an indictment charging assault with intent to murder the former Miriam Thurmond—now the second Mrs. John E. Drewry — was returned after the jury had deliberated for four hours.

Dean John E. Drewry of the University of Georgia School of Journalism and his bride of a month were not in the courtroom which had been the scene of some of the most sensational testimony ever given in a Georgia trial.

"Delusional Insanity"

Mrs. Drewry, whose marriage to the educator ended in divorce last July, had made a plea of "delusional insanity" through her attorneys, and backed it up with a long, lurid tale of sex troubles with Drewry, alleged infidelity on his part, and of marital relations, resumed after the divorce.

Hirohito Studying Bible Only as Literature

Tokyo, April 21 (AP).—Emperor Hirohito and Empress Nagako are interested in the Bible—but only as great literature — imperial household officials said today.

A Japanese evangelist, Toyohiko Kagawa, said in Wales Wednesday the Empress was being instructed in the New Testament and was in turn teaching the Emperor.

Crash Landing

Pulaski, Va., April 21 (AP).—An Air Force experimental F-52 fighter plane crash landed at Pulaski airport last night destroying the twin-engine airplane but the pilot and a passenger escaped uninjured.

The pilot was identified at Lt. Col. Leon G. Lewis and his passenger as Lt. George Honeymon of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Youth Beaten

Nurse Raped; Coast Police Hunt Gunman

Los Angeles, April 21 (U.P.).—The police radio today broadcast every five minutes a description of a gunman-rapist who kidnaped and attacked a pretty student nurse after knocking out her escort.

The gunman assaulted Carol Ann Cope, 22, after surprising her and a friend, Robert Mueller, also 22, as they sat in an automobile. Miss Cope, hysterical, was under treatment at the hospital where she is taking a nursing course.

"The man stuck a gun into Bob's face and told us to get out of the car," Miss Cope said.

He forced them to lie on the ground and then struck Mueller on the head with his pistol, knocking him unconscious and robbing him of $35.

The gunman drove Miss Cope away and raped her.

Mueller, meanwhile, regained consciousness and crawled up a hill to a radio transmitter station where he called police.

While they were on their way, Miss Cope staggered to a home and also called police.

The abduction was similar to the recent sex-kidnaping of a 17-year-old girl in nearby Baldwin Park. Vance B. Smith, parolee from a mental hospital, is awaiting trial on rape-kidnap charges for forcing Dulcy Ann Nelson out of a car at gunpoint and trying to rape her.

Indian Soldier Slays 22

New Delhi, India, April 21 (U.P.). New Delhi newspapers reported today that a drunken soldier hacked to death 22 "untouchables" with a jungle knife at a wedding in Nainital.

Francis: It Will Turn Out I Just Can't Talk

Synopsis: In yesterday's installment, Francis, the talking mule, balked at his general's grandiose plans to make him famous. Whereupon, the commander flew into a rage and marched Francis off to headquarters.

Knocks 'Em for a Loop

By David Stern

America was rocked back on its haunches.

Announcement of discovery of Francis caused more controversy than a national election.

The attention of every soldier from the lowest private to the commanding general himself was centered on the spacious reception room of the Administration Building where Francis had been installed.

But the general was closer to blowing out his brains than any man I had ever seen.

Now the world was about to descend on the CG's doorstep to verify the story.

And Francis absolutely refused to say a word!

The mule was almost talkative with me. And, though, he tended toward the formal with the general, their conversation was animated and often brilliant.

"Ridiculous, isn't it?" said the mule. "Yesterday I was just an ordinary Army pack mule. Then you announce I can talk. Today the world beats a hasty path to my door. I am a celebrity. But it turns out I can't talk. And a week from now, without doubt, I'll be back with the 123d, a happier, though no wiser, pack mule."

The general had paled three shades. "What do you mean, Francis, it will turn out you can't talk?

The mule shrugged his withers. "It will just turn out I can't talk."

"But you can talk," said the general.

"Certainly I can," said the mule. "But I'm not going to."

"My career will be ruined if you don't talk, Francis."

"Mine will be ruined if I do."

"Think of my family," said the general with pathos in his voice. "I have four sons in the Army."

"Enlisted men?" asked Francis.

"All officers," said general.

"Then they can take care of themselves," stated the mule.

Anger flushed the CG's face. "I could have you shot," he thundered.

Francis shook his head. "I doubt it, general. I very much doubt it. What excuse would you give for having me shot?"

"I could say you were out of your head," said the CG.

"Now, now, general," Francis was patronizing, "you with one foot in the nut house. That would never do."

"I could get a club and beat you within an inch of your life," said the CG desperately.

"You're becoming rattled, general." Francis twitched an ear. "Even such a strategic error. Shows your hand too clearly. Let's suppose you raised one little finger to me, just a gentle slap, mind you, but in anger. Then suppose I decided to change my mind and talk. Of course I'd embroider the affair. I can see the headlines, now, 'Mule Beaten by Genral.' What a story? What a gneral!"

The CG paled, then reddened again in anger. "Damned inconsiderate, stupid stubborn mule!" he stormed. "Not worth the powder to blow you to hell. Mess up my life. Mess up my command. Mess up the whole war effort. Damn you!"

The CG drew himself to attention, did an about-face and stalked from the room. I followed. "Keep your shirts on," the mule called after us.

The 47 press representatives filed into the recreation hall

"I have here one of the most remarkable animals in world history, a mule who can talk, but a mule who informed me less than an hour ago that he has no intention of talking."

For a moment the group stood in stunned silence. Then the air was filled with excited exclamations. I caught such phrases are: "Greatest hoax in Army history. . . . Must be crazy. . . . Half way 'round the damned world. . . . wildest story I ever . . . America will never take this . . .The President will have to explain . . . triumph for the Axis. . . ."

The general drew himself to attention.

"Unfortunately, gentlemen, that is the situation." He marched from the room.

Correspondents were yelling. They were demanding their money back. They were writing furiously, looking for telephones, making threats, and generally behaving like a Jap regiment in a Banzai charge.

"Well, Francis," I said, "I hope you realize that you have just sent your Commanding General and me to an insane asylum for life."

"Nonsense," said Francis. "They'll keep you there just long enough for a good rest. Then the excitement will die and they'll relize your're tolerably sane and let you out."

An AP man was looking at Francis. "You know," he said, "one of the wildest aspects of this story is that they didn't pick a better-looking animal."

"Sorry-looking beast, isn't it?" said the United Press man. "Sort of a four-footed Sad Sack."

Francis was stiff as a board.

"Pathetic beasts of burden," agreed the AP man.

"But not dumb enough to work for a newspaper!" The words cracked out like whip snaps.

As one man the correspondents pivoted.

"Who said that?" asked the AP man.

"I did!" Francis was shaking with anger. "You want to make something of it?"

The newspapermen were speechless.

The mule fixed them with a glare. "I have listened to twaddle in my time," said Francis, "I have heard more than my share of fool remarks! But, by the tail of my great-aunt Regret who won the Derby, I have never suffered through such disgusting hogwash as you so-called newspapermen are spouting!"

Mouths were hanging like open bomb bays on a B-29.

"You can talk!" said the AP man in a whisper of awe.

"You just heard the general say I could talk," said Francis. "But oh no, you gentlemen of the press are too smart. You know everything. You even know about mules."

"How did you learn to talk?" asked the UP man.

"A silly question," said Francis. "A thoroughly silly question. How did you learn to talk?"

The UP man looked unhappy. "My mother taught me," he said.

"She probably had quite a struggule," Francis said. "People take it as a matter of course you can talk. I suppose some even think you can write. Personally I always thought your style florid. Now, as for my talking, I too prefer you take that as a matter of course."

"How long have you been able to talk?"

"I've been able to talk since I was old enough. But see here, gentlemen, if you want to ask any questions make them worthwhile."

"It so happens I can fly. But I don't like to."

"Why not?"

"It's an effort," said Francis. "And it's dangerous. I go into a spin easily. But what's that got to do with the war?"

There was a commotion at the door. The mob parted and the Commanding General entered. He was cocky as an aviator who had just made ace.

"Well, well, gentlemen, how do you like Francis?" he asked.

"Are these the leading representatives of the press?" interrupted the mule before anyone could speak.

"They most certainly are," said the general.

"Hmf," sniffed the mule. "Just lends credence to my claim that the only reliable reading is the Encyplopedia Britannica."

"Come now, Francis," said the CG soothingly.

"General," said the mule, "I am a democratic animal. But when I look over this crew I realize how right I was to prefer the life of a pack animal. Strictly palookas, eh, general?"

"Francis, careful yhat you say," said the general. His smile faded. "I didn't want to talk, general," the mule said. "But I've been insulted. Not that I mind specially when I'm insulted by my equals. But this crew . . . General! No self-respecting member of the Armed Forces of the United States should take it lying down."

The general was beside himself. Suddenly he straightened and commanded, "Attention!"

Francis froze.

"That will be all for the time being, gentlemen," said the general. "I will announce any later meetings."

In half a minute the general, Francis and I were alone.

The CG looked at the mule, rubbed the back of his neck. "You know," he said, "I'm not sure, Francis, your being able to talk is such a good thing."

"Why, general," Francis waved his tail airily, "those fellows are suckers for bunk. If I'd been impressed, they wouldn't have been. I wasn't. They were. They went for it the way natives go for Spam. A couple more sessions, general, and I'll be the hero of the press."

The general was looking at Francis with awesome respect.

"Don't worry, general," the mule said, "I have everything under control."

Tomorrow: Francis comes to a dubious end.

'Wonderful Guy'

'Washed Up' With Elliot, Singer Says

New York, April 21 (U.P.).—Blues singer Georgeanne (Gigi) Durston said today she once loved a "wonderful guy," Elliot Roosevelt, but their wedding plans now are "all washed up."

"Certain situations," she said, "just made it impossible for me to marry him." The situations were "too personal" to talk about, she said.

She had been very serious with the second son of the late President, and still admires his disposition, but, she added, "We were never officially engaged."

She said she last spoke to Roosevelt two weeks ago when they decided to break off their romance.

The thrice-married Roosevelt who recently was divorced by actress Faye Emerson, was "on a small yacht somewhere . . . not available for comment," his secretary said.

RCA Will Show Off Its New Color Sets

By Sonia Stein

IT'S NOT our fault that we don't know more about what RCA will be showing in the way of color television receivers at the Home Builders Association Show May 12 to 21.

Nabbing Dr. Elmer Engstrom, chief of research laboratories for RCA, for the definitive answer on how many sets would be shown, we got his definitive answer. Said Dr. Engstrom, "I don't know."

Honest, the sets you'll see—and there will be some sets at the National Guard Armory those 10 days—are so new a development, RCA isn't sure how many it can have ready by then. The tubes being used in the multicolor single tube sets are all handmade at this stage of development. Nobody has seen them so far except the press and the Federal Communications Commission and a handful of interested manufacturers.

First Peek

THE WASHINGTON public is getting the first "general public" peek at the RCA sets just as it got the first peek at CBS color in January and February.

The CBS shows were free, and the RCA shows will be free, too, except that in this case you'll have to pay your way into the Home Show to get near the RCA sets.

Shows will be put on a couple of times a day. They won't interrupt regular programming on WNBW, since the RCA color system can be picked up in black and white on regular black and white sets. That's because of the big virtue of "compatibility" which the CBS color system doesn't have. However, the problem of converting a black and white set to receive these systems in color, works the other way around. It can be done cheaply with the CBS system, maybe can't be done except at practically prohibitive costs for the RCA system.

The color tubes you'll see demonstrated in the sets—which could be used by any color system the FCC might adopt—probably won't be mass produced for the market for two years. They are so new nobody knows yet just how fast they can perfect them and get them on the assembly line.

RCA may also show some of its older type color receivers in which three separate pictures in color are reflected on a projection screen, one over the other.

To New York

THE FCC will go to New York next Wednesday to see what CBS is showing in the way of its new dot interlace method of increasing the details of its color pictures. A new development in the CBS system, it will be shown for the first time then to the press, also.

Unlike the RCA system in which the dot structure is apparent to the eye at close range, the CBS dot interlace system shows no dots in the finished picture. They're filtered out along the way.

On Thursday, the commissioners expect to see a set which could be used for all three color TV systems that have been proposed to the commission. This is the set that has been nicknamed the "Dux Does Everything" set. In the event that the commission decides to open the color TV situation to all systems, it would come in handy. Come in a very large box, too, I bet.

Dick Linkroum, formerly program director at WTOP and now director of Arthur Godfrey's Wednesday night TV show, and Betty Beckinstin, assistant to Hazel Markel, WTOP's current program director, have just finished putting out a report on commercials for TV and are all ready to start another book.

The one just completed, written in collaboration with John De Mott, CBS' head of TV special effects, is all about how to show off silverware to best advantage, make shoes look their prettiest, etc. It's been written for the National Association of Broadcasters to save new TV stations from having to learn by trial and error the things older TV stations already know.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

As Usual, Bill Spoiled A Good Joke

"Thanks for warning us about those false noses," writes R. K. Wangness of 4915 Edmonston rd., Hyattsville, Md. "When it was tried on us, we were able to keep straight faces and pretend we saw nothing different about the prankster. The laugh was on him."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Two long-haired male kittens, 6 weeks old and full of mischief." (Appleton 1581.)

"Seventeen kittens whose three mothers have housebroken them and gotten them ready for adoption." (Jordan 8-4987 after 6 p. m. or weekends.)

"Two intelligent, playful female kittens, 10 weeks old." (Taylor 0514.)

"Delightful, trained kittens, Persian strain." (Overlook 2056.)

"Two brown-and-white female hound dogs, obviously in need of steady diet of affection; they've adopted us against our will." (Logan 3-8674.)

KID STUFF

Eleanor Poole of 2418 Taylor ave., Alexandria, Va., has a wonderful story about a 13-year-old boy who lives in her neighborhood.

The lad's mother has been helping him with his homework. Especially arithmetic, which hasn't come easy for the boy.

When he came home with different textbooks at the start of the new semester, he glanced through the arithmetic book and shook his head dubiously.

"Mother," he frowned, "I'm afraid this one is going to be too hard for you."

UNCLE SAM, LANDLORD

Pet-owners in the Government's Lily Ponds Houses at 4500 Quarles st. ne. are up in arms over a recent order that all dogs must be out by the end of this month.

Manager Robert C. Davenport sent out a notice to tenants stating that he had received many complaints of vicious dogs and upset refuse containers. As a result, prohibition of pets contained in Lily Ponds leases will henceforth be enforced.

But a petition circulated among tenants asks that the order be rescinded because it is without basis. The pet-owners say that dogs belonging to residents are practically all licensed, and not permitted to run wild. Damage, they say, is done by strays, "so what good would it do to make our children give up their pets, only to have the strays continue to run loose?"

Among the names appearing on the petition are: Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Wilson, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Robert French, Mrs. J. H. McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Russell, W. R. Taylor, M. Menowsky, Orval R. Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. Roland A. E. Berardo, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene R. Boucher, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene C. Perkins, Mr. and Mrs. N. G. Lannier, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Woodland R. Evans, Mr. and Mrs. John Terrell, Mrs. H. L. Posey, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Goodwin, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Simonds, Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. McKee and Mr. and Mrs. Louis G. Cleary.

If a private landlord got a petition raising a question of fact, I'm sure he'd give it careful consideration in an effort to keep his tenants happy. I hope that the Government will do as much.

PERSONAL NOTES

Ann Eggert: Thanks for the kind words. I'm off the air because the program took as much as 40 hours of work per week, and I wasn't getting any sleep. If somebody thinks up a shorter show that won't interfere with my work on the column, I'll be glad to give it a whirl.

THIS IS WASHINGTON

Starting Sunday The Washington Post's sports pages will carry a daily excerpt from Gene Sarazen's new book, "Thirty Years of Championship Golf."

Like the genial Gene himself, the book is chock full of rich good humor. Here's an example:

During the war years, Gene stopped off in Washington on his way to a major tournament. Bob Hannegan, then Postmaster General, took Sarazen along to a party at the British Embassy.

When the famous golfer was introduced to Lord Halifax, the British Ambassador asked: "What brings you to Washington, Mr. Sarazen?"

"Oh, I'm just going to the PGA," replied Gene.

"Well, that just goes to show you," sighed Halifax, "no matter how closely you try to keep in touch with what's going on in Washington, the moment you turn your back the Government has created another agency."

FIRST, there's a full page of the cutest baby pictures you've ever seen—prize winning pictures—all from The Washington Post Bright Babies Contest.
THEN, The Sunday Post takes you to a birthday party. The Library of Congress is having its own 150th birthday party, right in the midst of the District's Sesquicentennial.
SPEAKING OF BIRTHDAYS, be sure to read Richard L. Coe's column. He'll tell you about another big birthday party. It's at the Folger Shakespeare Library tomorrow and they're celebrating William Shakespeare's 386th birthday!
IF YOU'RE THINKING about more serious things, like renting a house, just turn to the Sunday Real Estate Section. You'll get all the information you need about houses available for rent now and in the future, how much they rent for and where you can get them.
WHAT ABOUT the latest books? You'll find them reviewed in the Book Section, and you'll especially want to read Reporter Ferdinand Kuhn's review of Winston Churchill's book, "The Grand Alliance."
POLITICS? Post Reporter Alfred Friendly comes up with some startling facts when he tracks Senator Joseph McCarthy's accusations back to their source. This is a must reading for everyone following the McCarthy affair in Congress.

Medical Waste Laid to Politics

By Drew Pearson

The public doesn't know it, but the real reason for waste regarding veterans hospitals is politics. It is also why conscientious Dr. Paul Magnuson, chief of the Veterans Administration's medical division, has been on the point of resigning.

GEN. GRAY

He wants hospitals located where medical conditions are best, while genial Veterans Administrator Carl Gray sometimes locates them where political conditions are best. Unlike Gen. Omar Bradley, he doesn't know how to stand up against political pressure.

Here are some specific examples:

Muley Boo Doughton's Hospital—The VA will soon build a 1000-bed neuropsychiatric hospital at Salisbury, N. C., despite the fact that medical authorities want it at Durham or Winston-Salem where it would be near Duke University or the future site of Wake Forest College. Doctors always like to place neuropsychiatric hospitals near medical centers, because nerve patients sometimes have a complication of diseases.

This view was also supported by Secretary of the Army Gordon Gray, a North Carolinian. But another North Carolinian disagreed. He was Congressman Bob Doughton, who, as chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, is one of the most powerful members of Congress. Despite economies and medical preferences, Doughton wanted the hospital in his district. So it is going to be put there.

Senator Murray's Hospital—A 100-bed hospital is being built at Miles City, Mont., also far from a medical center, as a favor to Senator James Murray of Montana. This hospital was originally scheduled to be part of a VA project at Minot, N. Dak., until "Doctor" Murray decided otherwise. It will now cost the taxpayers the huge sum of $4,476,891, or more than $44,000 per bed.

Congressman Vinson's Hospital—The VA has been forced to take over and maintain another out-of-way hospital at Dublin, Ga., built by the Navy as a favor to Congressman Carl Vinson of Georgia, powerful chairman of the Armed Services Committee.

This hospital is so far from a main-line railroad that the Navy had to build a special airfield to bring in patients. Also, only 360 of its 500 beds are in use, due to lack of medical personnel. To staff the Dublin hospital, Dr. Magnuson finally had to order 15 doctors there from other VA hospitals. Whereupon eight of the 15 resigned.

Budget Bureau's Hospital—Another glaring case is at Augusta, Ga., where the VA, under pressure from the Budget Bureau, is being forced to take over a ramshackle Navy hospital for neuropsychiatric patients. The main building is an old hotel, with corridors and doors too narrow for hospital use.

More important, this hospital cannot be adequately staffed with doctors and technicians to handle its 1000 beds. The VA wants to build a new psychiatric hospital in Atlanta, Ga., where doctors from Emory University, a first-class medical school, would be available for residence work. Such a hospital could be built for what it will cost to maintain the Navy "snakepit" at Augusta for 10 years. However, the Budget Bureau says no.

Closed-Open Embassy

Every spring the allegedly elite homes of Washington are put on display for the benefit of a church charity. For a modest sum, the curious public can traipse over the rugs of Mrs. Dean Acheson in Georgetown, or gaze at the bric-a-brac of Mrs. Felix Frankfurter.

Some of the embassies are also open to the public, and this year some of the ladies raised their eyebrows as to whether the Egyptian Embassy should be included on the list. Reason: Last year the Egyptians barred a prominent Washington hostess because she is Jewish.

The wife of a leading Washington businessman was supposed to have served as hostess during a tour at the Egyptian Embassy. But the Egyptian Ambassador refused to let Mrs. Hechinger set her foot inside the front door. Mrs. Wiley Rutledge, wife of the late Supreme Court Justice, calmed the furor; and instead, Mrs. Jesse Donaldson, wife of the Postmaster General, served as hostess for the Egyptian Embassy.

Now spring has come again and another open-house tour. But instead of protesting the insult, the society ladies have invited the Egyptian Embassy to participate again and are meekly sending Mrs. Donaldson back as hostess.
